Hop, Skip, Jump.
How to Use Airplanes.
For Nursing Mothers.
Russia Is Building.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HEARST RANCH, SAN SIMEON, Cal., Aug. 8. SHATTERING OLYMPIC records and world records is part of the routine at the Los Angeles games. You should see some of the extraordinary athletic feats, and there is still time. The games last until the fourteenth of this month.

Some sports are more widely interesting than others. For instance, everybody in boyhood has spent hours doing the "hop, skip and jump." You hop on one foot, then skip, then end with a broad jump. Thirty-five feet was a good jump at Jackson school house, in Fanwood, N. J.

CHUHEI NAMBU, of Japan, is world champion for all time, with a hop, skip and jump of fifty-one feet seven inches. Try it with a running start. Measure off fifty-one feet and see how much of it you cannot cover.

It is called by the Olympic authorities "hop, step and jump," but "skip" is better.

THE FIFTY THOUSAND meters walk, about thirty miles, interests us all because we all walk. The British are the best walkers and William Green, of Great Britain, won the event in four hours, fifty minutes, ten seconds.

Jan Kusocinski, of Poland, won the ten thousand meters race in thirty minutes, eleven seconds, a new world record. You observe that men can run much faster than they can walk. They achieved their sprinting powers long ago, with the hairy man from the next valley chasing them with a sharp flint fastened at the end of a stick.

They learn success in other directions in much the same fashion now. The stick and flint are missing, but competition takes their place.

OUT HERE, airplanes are used to save time in business. Their use is taken for granted, and schedules arranged accordingly.

He takes, by ship, to Australia, a powerful airship owned by Hal Roach, whose movies you know.

From Australia, having flown to inspect theaters there, Mr. Loew flies to Singapore, inspects the Metro theaters in China and Japan, then flies across India, and down to Johannesburg in South Africa, where new theaters are to be opened.

RECENTLY LOEW and Hal Roach made an inspection flight in South America, starting from Mexico City, stopping at Lima, Peru, Santiago, Chile, Buenos Ayres and Rio De Janeiro, completing the round trip in 20 days, with plenty of time at each stopping place.

In a few years any long distance travel, other than by air, will be unknown, except among a few, very old fashioned. The sort that, during the Paris exposition, refused to go upstairs in hotel elevators.

SOMETIMES a woman anxious to nurse her baby, that it may have every chance, finds that it is impossible, and many good mothers have been cruelly misjudged, in consequence.

Very important is the announcement of the Carnegie Institute that scientists have discovered the hormone, or gland secretion, that causes milk production.

Admirable substitutes for mother's milk have been developed, but there is, as yet, no absolute substitute, especially for the first six months of the child's life. In those months, mother's milk protects the child from various infantile diseases. In the young infant the leucocytes or white corpuscles, that attack disease within the system, lack power.

Some genius may find a way to develop that particular hormone on a big scale for cows, and help solve the dairyman's problem. You might have the one hundred quarts per day cow.

LADY DRUMMOND HAY'S article on Russia's airplane program, published yesterday, should be sent to everybody in our government, and to all financiers of importance. Some of them do not like to think about paying for the world's biggest air fleet, forgetting that there is no cheaper defense. But they would pay, rather than admit that Russia rules the air.

LADY HAY, who has flown around the world and knows airplanes, believes, after visiting Moscow, that Russia firmly intends to surpass the French air fleet, now greatest in the world.

The Russians announce themselves prepared already to dispose, by air bombardment, of Japan's floating war fleet, should Japan attack Vladivostok. Two thousand mechanics are manufacturing planes for Russia as rapidly as possible.

The statement that "Russia's aircraft industry is already greater than that of the United States" may be exaggerated, but it calls for attention.

ONE MORE man with "a plan" is a well-meaning Austrian Baron Karl Ferdinand Tinty, of Austria. He plans to open his ancient castle, Schalaburg, on the wide, swift-flowing Danube, as a haven for the world's great minds. There "exchanging ideas over their pipes," far from the disturbing crowd, the great minds will solve all the world's problems and do away with its ills.

THEY WILL do nothing of the kind of course. That will be done, gradually, by men that

HARRIS SUED FOR DIVORCE BY WIFE

Jane Thurston Files Suit Here; Marital Career Lively

The short and lively marital union of Harry Harris, playboy son of the late Senator John P. Harris, and Jane Thurston, daughter of the magician, split wide today on the rocks of divorce.

In Common Pleas Court there was filed the attractive young actress' suit, charging cruelty and indignities to the person.

And in her quest for freedom the wife of the Harris heir exhibited some of the magic her father has been teaching her, for the suit has been hidden in the court records for 10 days.

MARRIED THREE TIMES

The married career of the young man who inherited some of the fortune built up by his father as a pioneer in the show business was as exciting as it was brief.

They were married three times, after a whirlwind courtship.

He met her in Pittsburgh in January, 1930, while she was appearing on the stage with her father, Howard Thurston.

On an afternoon on which Jane didn't have to play a matinee they slipped off somewhere—in January, 1930—and were married. They used assumed names.

WEDDING SECRET

COX DEFIES BAN ON CONVENTION

The threat of citizens of Clayton, Mo., to ask an injunction preventing the Jobless-Liberty party from holding its convention at the Creve Coeur Lake speedway near there will not alter convention plans, Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, said today.

News from Clayton was that the State Health Department had declared sanitary facilities "entirely inadequate and unsatisfactory." Officials and citizens there last night planned court action unless conditions met official approval.

Father Cox said M. G. Bayster, one of his aides, is in St. Louis working to improve the sanitary conditions.

The priest stated:

"We will do everything possible to go along with them. But we are holding our convention regardless. If they don't like the way we are living there let them quarantine us and keep us there."

LINDY MONEY IDENTIFIED

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Three $20 bills, two tens and two fives were definitely identified by police today as bearing serial numbers corresponding to those on ransom money paid in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

Police said they did not know whether the plate numbers, a small series in the right-hand corner of the bills, corresponded to those on the $50,000 in bills thrown over a cemetery hedge in The Bronx, by Dr. John F. Condon, on April 2, a month and a day after the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped.

The bills were deposited by Miss Carrie Anderson, a nurse, of Hampton, Va., at the Bank of Nova Scotia, at Albert, N. B., last week. Bank officials turned them over to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Moncton.

Miss Anderson was in Moncton today. She said she had obtained the $90, which was all the American money she had, from a bank in Hampton, Va.

2,000 Grope Way From Subway Fire

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Fire in the East Side subway near Brooklyn Bridge tied up underground traffic for hours today and forced 2,000 passengers to walk through the black tunnels to emergency exits.

One woman was taken to a hospital and several firemen were overcome. Firemen extinguished the blaze by dumping tons of water into the tunnels.

Take-Off of Piccard Delayed by Gas Leak

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Prof. Auguste Piccard, preparing for another ascension to the stratosphere, discovered a gas leak in the ionization chamber of his balloon today and said repairs would delay his take-off indefinitely.

LIBBY ASKS FOR EARLY TRIAL

Singer Seeks to Beat Arrival of Stork; Vanishes Again

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Libby Holman Reynolds, faced with a charge of killing her husband, wants an immediate trial, if possible, before the birth of her baby.

Benet Polikoff, one of her attorneys, made this statement here today and said he was reflecting the views of Libby who again is listed as missing after an early morning dash from a Reidsville hotel today.

Polikoff said:

We want to go to trial as soon as possible. If physicians think the ordeal will not endanger the life of the unborn child, Mrs. Reynolds would prefer to face the charges before the child is born."

WHEREABOUTS MYSTERY

The next regular term of court in Forsyth County begins October 3. A special term probably will be held in September, but Polikoff indicated there is little likelihood of the case being heard then.

Meanwhile, Libby's whereabouts today were as much a mystery.

PICKUP ADD

A "fade out" as dramatic as any in her theatrical career again removed Libby from the public gaze to which she returned yesterday for the few hours of swift activity necessary to obtain her freedom under bond on a charge of killing her millionaire husband a month ago.

DROPS MOURNING GARB

The former Broadway blues singer called on all her knowledge of theatrical effects, of swift changes of roles and costumes for the stage setting of her 2 a. m. dash to a retreat, such as she has occupied since the inquest at which a coroner's jury held the heir to the Reynolds tobacco fortune came to his death at the hands of a person or persons unknown.

Yesterday it was a grief-bowed widow, ill from the strain of recent weeks, who appeared before Judge A. M. Stack at Wentworth, near here, after surrendering to the North Carolina law at a roadside filling station.

Today mourning was not in evidence as the young widow, flanked by two young men, appeared in the lobby of a hotel, and after making sure there was "nobody around," hurriedly entered a large sedan and sped away into the darkness.

DONS GAY COSTUME

Instead of yesterday's somber black gown and heavy veil, Libby today wore a snappy sports outfit of tan, with a comparatively short skirt and a matching sweater closely molded to her figure. Yesterday's small black hat gave way to a light colored beret. The veil was gone, too, but in its place were heavily rimmed dark glasses.

Her companions were Alfred Holman, Jr., her brother, and another youth, as yet unidentified.

Nancy Hoyt in Mourning For Slain Reynolds

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The death of Smith Reynolds at Winston-Salem, N. C., has sent Nancy Hoyt, American writer of sophisticated novels, to London to blot out the memory of her love for the man whose death has resulted in murder indictments against two persons.

She met Reynolds in 1930 when both were bound home from Europe aboard the Leviathan, she told the Associated Press today, and thereafter they were the closest friends. Both were married at the time, but they obtained divorces in order to wed each other. Miss Hoyt said:

"We were both stubborn. One night last September he asked me to fly to Carolina with him to be married.

"I wouldn't do it. I thought my friends would say Nancy was marrying for money. Besides, he was eight years younger and I was fool enough to think my friends would talk.

"He went away and I never saw him again. I never meant to give him up, but I didn't want to be a laughing stock."

Governor Should Let Voters of N. Y. Decide Fate of Mayor Walker

JAMES J. WALKER is mayor of New York city. He is either a satisfactory mayor to the people of New York city or he is not.

In a year a mayoralty election will be held and this question can be and in the ordinary course of events will be decided by the people of New York city.

Mayor Walker will either be renominated and re-elected or he will be rejected by the voters in the exercise of their franchise at the primaries or at the election.

The people of New York city favor home rule, and feel that they themselves are capable of deciding issues of a political character which immediately affect themselves, their municipality and their public representation.

The governor of New York state, under the constitution, has the power to remove the mayor of New York city.

But no mayor of New York city has ever been removed by any governor, although there have been many Tammany mayors with the usual Tammany characteristics, and although, there have been many governors,—both Democratic and Republican, who had the opportunity and the excuse to remove some mayor of New York City, but did not exercise the power.

MAYOR WALKER has been accused of malfeasance in office.

A very long and very expensive and very ably conducted investigation has been held without having established any very conclusive case against him.

Many improprieties on the part of the New York city administration have been uncovered, but it is extremely doubtful if any criminal or illegal or even sufficiently discreditable acts have been disclosed to warrant the governor of New York state intruding into the local affairs of New York city and attempting to decide a question which the people of New York city are on the point of deciding for themselves.

Not only would this intrusion, if unjustified, be an interference with the home rule rights of the citizens of New York city, but it might have the unintended effect of making a martyr of Mayor Walker and practically insuring his re-election to the mayoralty in the coming year.

IN LOS ANGELES lately a petition was circulated, and sufficiently signed, to bring Mayor Porter before the citizenship on the question of his recall.

A regular election was to be held in a year. The public seemed to resent the proposed recall as an interference with the natural process of political events, and Mayor Porter, although not apparently a popular mayor, was retained in office by a majority greater than the combined votes of all his opponents.

There is apparently no doubt that Mayor Porter actually gained popularity through the attempt to recall him.

Still, in this instance, the whole process was in the hands of the people of Los Angeles, and no extraneous power was attempting to interfere with their local rights, or influence their individual decisions.

If Mayor Walker deserves to be retired, the people of New York city can be depended upon to retire him.

They have the competence and the conscience to do so.

And they probably do not desire to have the governor of New York state exercise any dictatorial powers in the conduct of their local affairs, even though he possesses these powers under the constitution.

The best thing for a Democratic governor of New York state to do is to recognize the democratic rights of the citizens of New York city to conduct their own political affairs.

The case of Mayor Walker is a matter to be decided not by an arbitrary judge but by the jury of public opinion.

CITY MOURNS FOR DEAD LEADER

G. O. P. Advisor Dies Visiting President In Washington

From the White House to the funeral train President Hoover and his Cabinet today planned to accompany the body of James Francis Burke, the friend and adviser of the President who died last night in Washington.

At the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, with the country's highest officers as an audience, the body will be put into a private car to be taken to Pittsburgh for funeral services Friday.

Mr. Burke's son, James Scott Burke, who hurried to Washington last night from Pittsburgh, told the Sun-Telegraph over the telephone today that only he would accompany the body back.

DUE TOMORROW

The train, the Liberty Limited, was to leave Washington at 5:02 p. m. and arrive in Pittsburgh at 1:37 a. m. tomorrow.

The body of his father will be taken to the Burke home in Devonshire place, Schenley Farms.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a. m. in St. Paul's Cathedral. The Rev. William J. McMullen will celebrate a solemn high mass of requiem. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery, where the body will lie beside Mr. Burke's mother in the family lot.

In Common Pleas Court, where Burke practiced years ago, Judge George V. Moore ordered adjournment at noon as a mark of respect.

Adjournment of Federal Court today was to be in respect to Burke's memory, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker ordered.

Announcement was made at the White House that the President would be unable to attend the services in Pittsburgh, but that he would send a personal representative. Mr. Hoover issued this expression of regret:

"I feel deeply the loss of James Francis Burke. He was an ardent supporter and a high official of the Republican party. In addition, he was identified with a multitude of public movements, not only in his own city, but over the country.

"For many years he gave his

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The motor launch Goeyland, unheard from since it left here Sunday morning with 12 persons on board, was safe at Sechelt tonight. A member of the party telephoned that rough weather and engine trouble had forced them to seek shelter there.

RURAL LEGISLATORS BACK SALES TAX FOR STATE RELIEF

GROUP FIGHTS MOTOR FUND TRANSFER

Hagmaier Leader of New Move in Assembly

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 9.—Rural members, crusading against the only relief proposal now before the special session of the Legislature, a bill which would transfer $12,000,000 from the motor fund to the general fund for relief purposes, this morning prepared the skeleton of a sales tax bill which may be introduced in the House tomorrow.

The proposal would impose a retail tax of one-half of 1 per cent on commodities with the exception of food, gasoline and drugs. There is also discussion of exempting clothing from the provision of the bill.

HAGMAIER LEADER

Nearly two-score members attended the meeting this morning, presided over by Representative Louis Hagmaier, of Aspinwall, at which the sales tax proposal was discussed. Among them were Representatives who had assisted last night in killing the income and occupational tax bills, and who had sat in a midnight meeting of the Ways and Means Committee which refused last night to report out bills to tax cosmetics, cigarets and soft drinks.

Estimates of possible revenue were placed at $15,000,000, more than sufficient to meet the demands of the $12,000,000 Talbot relief bill already passed by the House.

This group is the nucleus of rural opposition to the Witkin-Blumberg bill to abstract $12,000,000 from the highway fund, a measure which was reported out of the appropriations committee after a hasty meeting last night in the wake of defeat of tax bills.

BLOC DEFEATED

The rural bloc was defeated this afternoon in an effort to recommit the highway transfer bill to the highway committee for burial purposes. Philadelphia and Allegheny members, with recruits from other large counties, overrode the motion to recommit, made by Representative Cauffiel, of Cambria County.

Proponents of the measure have little hope that it will pass tomorrow, but are endeavoring to secure the 105 votes necessary to send it across to the Senate.

Representative Steedle, Allegheny, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, fought the motion to recommit.

Gov. Pinchot is vigorously opposed to the road transfer measure, and in a two-fisted attack today the Governor said:

"If the proposed bill were to become law, the $12,000,000 it appropriates would have to be repaid to the motor license fund in the next biennium, and therefore would have to be taken from the general fund at a time when our financial condition will be far worse than it is now.

HIGHWAY FUNDS

"Highway funds already are used for relief. The highway department is the greatest relief organization in Pennsylvania. The relief it gives is work relief, which is the very best kind. It has spent $16,000,000 for work relief in the last year. It has had as many as 34,000 men at one time working on the roads.

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is fully informed about the use of highway funds for relief. It is not likely to be fooled if we pretend to take for relief funds which are already being used for relief, without adding to the sum total of the relief available."

necessary because they had used assumed names.

And they were married a third time in the Catholic Church of St. Louis, which is in Cincinnati, in a religious ceremony.

And then came the dawn.

BATTLE IN HOTEL

Harry, it seems, had tried to attack his father-in-law in their Detroit hotel when the magician set off a tear gas fountain pen that sent young Harris to the hospital for weeks facing blindness. He recovered, however. At that time, Thurston said:

"We have been troubled a long time by Harris but for Jane's sake have taken no action. Last summer he broke one of my ribs. I am 61 and he is 27."

Jane talked about getting a divorce then, but there was a reconciliation and in August of last year they left on a second honeymoon. Then the young husband said:

"You can tell our friends its permanent this time."

KLINE RETURNS, SCANS ECONOMY

Mayor Charles H. Kline, on his return at noon today from his summer home in Ohio, promised to have an announcement on the city's economy program after tomorrow's conference with members of his cabinet and City Council. He said:

"I have all afternoon and tonight to give the matter serious consideration. Just what will be done will be announced after the conference tomorrow."

MORE ONE-WAY STREETS ASKED

Congestion relief measures in the produce district through the 60-day trial of new one-way street regulations has been recommended by the Bureau of Traffic Planning to Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, following conferences with merchants of the district.

BUCK REFUELS IN S. CAROLINA

SPARTANSBURG, S. C., Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Winging his way southward in an effort to break the air speed record between New York and Mexico City, Robert Buck, 18-year-old Westfield (N. J.) flier, refueled here this morning, and resumed his journey 10 minutes later.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Full of youthful hopes for success, Robert Buck, 18, Westfield, N. J., hopped off at 4:05 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) today in a daring attempt to break the time record for a flight to Mexico City.

Buck flew alone, in the plane Yankee Clipper. The distance to the Mexican capital is 2,250 miles. He hoped to span it in 22 hours flying time, making six refueling stops en route.

Only a few persons saw the take-off. Among these was Mrs. O. A. Buck, the young pilot's mother. She brought sandwiches and coffee, which she herself stowed in the plane.

Tied Hands to Die In River, Father Says

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Police today had accepted Thomas Jacobson's story that his son had committed suicide after weeks of practicing tying his own hands behind his back.

The son, Julius, 36, according to his father, lost $400 in the closing of a bank and was unable to find work. He desired to end his life by drowning, but thought he swam too well. So he practiced tying his hands, then drowned himself, according to the father.

PINCHOT SEEKS FURTHER P. S. C. INQUIRY

Deeper Probe Into Link With Utilities Aim of Executive

HARRISBURG, Aug. 9.—(NIS.)—Appearing personally before the Senate, Gov. Gifford Pinchot tonight will demand that body to continue its probe into alleged illegal relations between the Public Service Commission and some utilities.

The Governor today announced his intention of asking such a probe at the current special session rather than to permit it to go over to next January.

WILL SPEAK TONIGHT

The formal request to be heard will be laid before the Senate immediately after it convenes tonight and will be granted at once.

Regarding the nature of the additional charges which he will make the Governor maintained silence.

Meanwhile, the scope of the Governor's charges remained a matter for conjecture. Should he demand a probe into the Philadelphia Rapid Transit rate increases and the various factors bearing upon them, months would be required to delve into them.

'CATS-PAW' CHARGES

During the regular session of 1931 the Governor laid before both Senate and House investigating committees dozens of charges which he contended proved that the commission was the "cats-paw of the utilities." Except to discover that holding companies had pyramided values until it was difficult for utility rates to keep pace with alleged values, even his personally controlled House committee uncovered little.

Since that time, however, the Governor obtained possession of documents with which he was able to make W. D. B. Ainey, chairman of the commission, quit his post rather than face a committee probe.

Rich Mother-in-Law Sued by Bride of 17

MRS. ROSEMARY FORTENER KENNY, 17 . . . . ASKING $50,000

Mrs. Kenny, whose mother today through Attorney Robert B. Ivory filed in her behalf a $50,000 alienation of affection suit against her Beechwood boulevard mother-in-law, Mrs. Stella Kenny. She and her bridegroom parted after only 25 days of marriage, she says.

Values Husband's Affections at $50,000

A swift-moving marriage that ran for 25 days like troubled waters today cascaded into the courts with Rosemary Fortener Kenny, 17, and beautiful, suing her mother-in-law for $50,000 alienation of affections.

Attorney Robert B. Ivory, Jr., filed the papers at noon in behalf of Rosemary Kenny through her mother, Mrs. Kathryn Fortener, of 260 South Winebiddle avenue.

They charged that Mrs. Stelle Kenny, of Beechwood boulevard, well-to-do widow, had caused her son, Charles Anthony Kenny, to leave his young wife and return to his mother's home.

The papers alleged the mother-in-law made accusations of the young bride's wrongdoing of "some vague sort;" that the mother persuaded her son to stay home, and that she urged the marriage should be annulled because Rosemary Kenny was "too young to appreciate the responsibilities as a wife."

The marriage, from the story the legal papers told, was young marriage. Young Kenny met the lovely looking girl; he wooed. A fast night ride to Wellsburg, W. Va., climaxed the courtship. That was January 2 of this year.

Both mothers stood beside them, 19 days later, as the young pair were remarried in church. Five days later, the bride charges, her husband and she were separated by his mother, and he left her.

The suit asks the $50,000 as relief for being deprived of her husband's company, friendship, assistance and affections.

Ask Pinchot Study Judge Ouster Plea

HARRISBURG., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Officials of the Citizens Water League, of Wilkes-Barre, today asked Gov. Pinchot and Representative Charles W. Staudenmeier, Schuylkill, to consider impeachment of Judge John S. Fine, of Luzerne.

Emerson Jennings, Wilkes-Barre, secretary of the league, submitted to Staudenmeier, chairman of the House Judiciary General Committee, a statement alleging that Judge Fine permits politics to interfere with his decisions from the bench.

STIMSON TALK IRKS TOKIO

Associated Press.

Irritation in Tokio and satisfaction in Geneva were apparently today's reactions to the address in New York last night of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson on the Briand-Kellogg pact.

Secretary Stimson, speaking before the Council of Foreign Relations, cited events in the Far East last winter as indicating how effectively the pact may be employed in putting a peaceful end to hostilities by mobilizing public opinion against them.

In Tokio today the Japanese Foreign Office asked its embassy in Washington to send a detailed report of Secretary Stimson's speech. Dispatches stated Japanese officials interpreted Secretary Stimson's remarks as an implication that Japan was the aggressor in Manchuria, an aggressor against whom the whole world was organized and mobilized as never before.

In Geneva satisfaction was expressed in League of Nations circles over what was described as "A guarantee that in any future call for action by the League the attitude of the United States will be known in advance and possible cause for embarrassment removed."

South Park Bather Reports Car Looted

Mrs. Helen Rosenbloom, 2214 Beechwood boulevard, told county detectives today that her car had been broken into, two wrist watches and a sum of money and clothing stolen while she was bathing at South Park.

LEAGUE REPORT SCORES JAPAN FOR STRIFE

Manchurian Warfare Plotted by Tokio, Probers Find

By HOBART C. MONTEE
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—A scathing indictment of Japan for wilful military aggression against China is contained in the preliminary report of the League of Nations Commission which investigated the Sino-Japanese crisis on the ground, International News Service learned today.

This commission, headed by the Earl of Lytton, of Great Britain, and of which Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, of the United States Army, is a member, is now en route to Geneva, where it will report officially to the league.

SERIOUS CHARGES

Its findings, if the final report follows the lines of the preliminary notes written at the conclusion of the commission's survey, will constitute one of the most damning indictments of a sovereign power made public since the League Council denounced the government of Liberia for slavery.

The commission's preliminary report on Manchuria found Japan guilty of aggression in China on some 15 separate counts. Among these, the outstanding charges were that:

1—The Japanese military deliberately planned and brought about the Manchurian affair on September 19.

2—A high staff officer of the Japanese command in Manchuria journeyed to Tokio early in September last and conferred with the general staff concerning Manchuria.

MILITARY PLANS

3—The Japanese military plans were all made in advance, the troops were warned that the night of September 18-19 would be the "zero hour" for the beginning of operations.

5—The Shanghai incident apparently was an "accident."

Although Japan thus will bear the brunt of blame in the Lytton report, it is believed China will not escape without feeling some sting. The commission is expected to comment on the apparent weakness, inefficiency and incompetentness of the government in Manchuria prior to the Japanese invasion.

China in Turmoil As Cabinet Quits

SHANGHAI, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—The government of China was thrown into turmoil today by the resignation of the entire cabinet headed by Premier Wang Ching-Wei.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-Lian, former war lord of Manchuria and during the last year commander of the Peiping and North China area, also resigned, leaving former President Chiagn Kai-Shek virtual dictator.

Hoover Too Busy To See Reporters

were little boys that grew up on solitary farms, or little boys that grew up in the slums and realize what human suffering means. It will be done by scientists working in their laboratories, increasing men's power, and by the dull, invincible power of the masses, occasionally throwing off injustice, with one powerful gesture, as in the French revolution, and more recently in the Russian revolution.

Dreadful mistakes, and injustice sometimes follows such gestures. But improvement, in the end, comes.

Aimee's Mate Proposes Trade of Temple Jobs

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Clashes between David L. Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, and R. A. Watkins, deposed Angelus Temple commissary head, revealed at a city social service commission hearing that Temple charity workers were entitled to 30 per cent of all funds they collected.

"I'll trade jobs with you. I can't get that much as manager of the Temple."

Watkins testified he had paid "a lot" of the 30 per cent commissions to charity collectors personally. He said:

"The total net income to the commissary so far this year was $5,013 and I received only $687 salary up to July 1. I'll have to audit my bank book, because I can't tell how much I paid out of my own funds to charity solicitors."

The investigation of what officials termed "charity racketeering" started after police arrested a man on charges of possessing a still. The still, police said, was traced to Angelus Temple, where parts of it had been assembled from odds and ends collected for charity by Temple workers.

Wedding Off, Sponsors Reveal Own Marriage

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The bride and bridegroom didn't appear for the wedding, so the wedding party celebrated the elopement of the bridesmaid and best man.

Dr. Robert Herbst, of Columbia University, and Miss Martha Catching, San Francisco art student, were to have been married at St. Luke's Church here last night. When they failed to appear, the ceremony was "indefinitely postponed" and the couple's brother and sister announced their own wedding.

A whirlwind courtship, which began when Fred P. Herbst, New York seed importer, came here Saturday to attend his brother's wedding, he revealed, culminated in his elopement Sunday to Reno with Miss Ann Catching. They met for the first time in New York a year ago.

Professing ignorance as to the whereabouts of his brother and Miss Martha Catching, Fred Herbst suggested today, "Maybe they have eloped."

LEADERS URGE WALKER CASE BE DROPPED

Warn Roosevelt That Dismissal Would Be 'Blunder'

By RAYMOND L. BORST
ernational News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Powerful Democratic leaders have advised Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt that he will make a serious mistake, both politically and legally, if he removes James J. Walker as Mayor of New York on the charges filed by Samuel Seabury, it was revealed today by persons close to the Governor.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee and the Governor's presidential campaign manager, is reported to have counselled Roosevelt to dismiss the charges.

APPEARS THURSDAY

The stage is being set for Mayor Walker's appearance before Gov. Roosevelt in the executive chamber Thursday afternoon.

The prospect of Mayor Walker, idol of Tammy Hall, being cross-examined by Gov. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, has thrilled the capitol more than anything else since former Gov. William Sulzer was impeached 20 years ago.

Unless the Governor changes his plans at the last minute, Walker will not be permitted to cross examine anyone except Seabury.

AFTER SEABURY

Mayor Walker, according to word reaching the capitol, will relish the chance to put Seabury "on the spot" in front of the Governor. The Mayor is reported to have told friends that he is confident he will be able to prove to the Governor that Seabury based his charges on "half truths," and that the charges should be dismissed.

Gov. Roosevelt had a brief telephone conversation with Mayor Walker last night, but its nature was not revealed.

Friends of the Governor insist his mind is "still open" and will remain so until after the hearing.

Walker Demands 'Real Trial' on Charges

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Heralding the type of fighting which most likely will develop when Mayor James J. Walker faces the removal charge hearing before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Albany Thursday, the Mayor today made public his counter-attack to his political assailants.

In the surrebuttal to Samuel Seabury, counsel of the Hofstadter legislative committee and filer of charges against him, Walker demanded the Governor hold a "real trial" into the accusations rather than a hearing.

He maintained his right to cross-examine witnesses at the trial, as well as his major accusers, and to produce witnesses in his own behalf.

Walker slashingly attacked Seabury's rebuttal to the Mayor's original reply to the charges. The Mayor said Seabury again was guilty of "misrepresentation."

GARBO RESUMES MYSTERY ROLE

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Reverting to her role of mystery and elusiveness after an unexpected demonstration of amiability on her arrival at Gothenburg yesterday, Greta Garbo disappeared into thin air today.

The entire country, eager to honor her on her first trip home after a world-conquering invasion of Hollywood, looked for her in vain. There was not a trace of the actress after she left a small hotel yesterday near Gothenberg, where she landed on the liner Grispholm a few hours before.

CLERIC INDICTED IN DEATH

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The Rev. S. A. Berrie was indicted today on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the death of his first wife.

The indictment was returned after a day and a half of grand jury investigation into the alleged poisoning of the first Mrs. Berrie on last March 21, which was followed in less than two months by the minister's marriage to Ida Bess Berrie, 19-year-old Sunday school teacher in his church.

The 52-year-old clergyman had been in jail since Saturday night. His bride, to whom he allegedly penned love poems before the first Mrs. Berrie died, was not held, officers saying they believed she was "a victim of circumstances."

Scientists Discover Hormone of Mothers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Discovery of the hormone, or gland secretion which causes the production of mothers' milk, was announced today by scientists of the Carnegie Institution. The discovery, it was said, will be useful in the treatment of mothers deficient in milk.

The newly isolated hormone is a secretion of the pituitary gland, located at the base of the skull behind the root of the nose. The same gland secretes two other hormones which influence bodily growth and sex activity.

Balk 2 Girls Hiking To Hollywood Fame

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Hollywood bound, two youthful New York girls were picked up here by police today as they were endeavoring to hitchhike their way to Pittsburgh.

The girls declared they were going to Hollywood and gave their names as Elsie Trost, 17, and Irene Fregean, 18, both of New York City. Police notified their parents.

FREED WOMAN LAUDS PINCHOT

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 9.—Released from county jail when Gov. Gifford Pinchot paid her fine of $17.90, Mrs. Anna Chess, 36, of Fairchance, who killed a flicker, a songbird, for her hungry family, today was back with her husband and two sons in her humble home. She had served four days of a 20-day sentence.

Gov. Pinchot wired Justice of the Peace William J. Ruble, of Fairchance, yesterday, directing the release of the woman and sending an order for $17.90. Ruble cannot understand how the Governor found this figure as the fine and costs amounted to $20.50. He says more money is due him, but he is satisfied to let the matter drop.

Mrs. Chess, welcomed home by her husband, Joseph, and her two boys, Joseph, Jr., and Neutche, said:

"The Governor is one nice, great man. I want to thank him very much and wish I could tell him all in a letter. It was a big shame to make me stay in jail. I have no more taste for birds—even if I starve."

Sorry She Hadn't More Bricks to Hurl at Man

Margaret Duffy, 37, no home, and James K. McCarthy, 25, of 2039 Fair avenue, threw three bricks at George Smith, 35, of 138 William street, as he was on his way to work this morning, he testified in Mt. Washington Police Court. Magistrate J. J. Sweeney asked Miss Duffy if the charge was true. She replied:

"Yes, and I wish I had had four bricks. I'm Irish through and through and I have a temper. How do you like that?"

Sweeney rejoined:

"Fine. Thirty days in jail or $10 for you."

McCarthy also was fined $10. Smith was discharged.

POISON SUICIDE SEEN IN DEATH

Peter J. Loesch, 38, of 821 Spring Garden avenue, found dead in bed, probably ended his own life by drinking poison, it was said today at the Coroner's office following completion of a police investigation. No post-mortem examination will be made, it was said.

Police said an examination at Allegheny General Hospital showed traces of poison in his body, on his clothing, and in a glass found near his bed. Police said they were unable to establish a motive for Loesch's act.

VOLPE'S JEWEL GONE, KIN SAYS

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh today ordered his police to investigate Guy Volpe's complaint that a diamond breast-plate was missing from the body of the murdered Johnny Volpe. Volpe said he had discovered the plate's absence after claiming the effects of Johnny and the other slain brothers, Jim and Arthur.

Volpe and his two attorneys, Edward G. Coll and Ira Hurwick, were closeted with Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the homicide squad today. Before the conference Ferris predicted another arrest today.

Ferris turned over to Guy Volpe the revolver found in Johnny's car after Guy had produced Johnny's permit. This permit was issued by Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar in April. In his application Johnny said he needed the gun for "protection."

$100,000 OWED TOMMY MALIE

Saved from a pauper's grave by the intervention of friends, Tommy Malie, armless Pittsburgh composer of tuneful lyrics, was owed approximately $100,000 in royalties by music publishers, it was revealed in Chicago today.

An attorney for William Herring, to whom Malie left his estate, made this revelation when Malie's will was offered for probate in Chicago.

Approval of the will was temporarily withheld because Herring's wife, Carmen, acted as a witness. Malie died in a charity ward of a Chicago hospital 10 days ago.

SAYS HE TOOK CLARKE INTO CONFIDENCE

Left 'Chubbie' in Care Of Writer, Accused Flier Declares

By LARRY SMITS
International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 9.—Warning Haden Clarke of "Chubbie's" moral weakness while drinking, Capt. William N. Lancaster asked the young writer to "stay on the wagon" himself and as far as possible protect Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller—"Chubbie"—while Lancaster was away.

The British flier had a confidential talk with Clarke on the sun porch of the Keith-Miller home here the day he hopped off for Texas, Lancaster testified today as he bared on the stand in his trial for murder his love-life with Mrs. Keith-Miller.

He revealed to Clarke the intimate nature of his life with the Australian aviatrix, he said.

LITTLE WRITING DONE

Clarke promised to care for Mrs. Keith-Miller in such a way "as to make me remember him for life," Lancaster said in continuation of his account which the defense believes will save the Britisher from the electric chair.

Lancaster told Chief Defense Counsel James M. Carson that he had treated Clarke in a confidential way from the beginning of their acquaintance, giving the young writer material he said he needed for the book he was supposed to be writing of the aviatrix's experiences.

Carson asked:

"Was any writing done on the proposed book for Mrs. Keith-Miller?"

"Very little. I blame myself for that. I took Haden with me wherever I'd go."

EXPLAINS "SET GAME"

Carson here took occasion to answer the impression State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne sought to give that reference to a "set game" of bridge in Lancaster's diary meant a crooked game. Capt. Lancaster explained that a "set game" is one in which the same partners played together throughout the evening.

"Did you ever see Haden lose his temper?"

"Yes."

"How would he act?"

"Oh, shout a bit."

"Was any drinking done while Clarke was living at the house and you were there?"

"Yes."

"By whom?"

"By myself, Mrs. Keith-Miller and Haden Clarke and guests who came to the house."

Carson refreshed Lancaster's memory with Lancaster's diary. The entry said:

Lancaster said:

"They were gay, but not unpleasant."

On Lancaster's birthday, Carson read an entry, the flier "went to Miami Beach to fish, but Haden and Chub decided to drink instead."

Lancaster said:

State's Attorney Hawthorne interrupted:

"How much?"

Carson explained:

"A gallon, just to start the day."

Both passion and unselfish love moved Capt. Lancaster in his relations with Mrs. Keith-Miller, the British flier testified.

Their love, born of common adversity and danger on their flight to Australia, found few opportunities for expression, because of acclaim and public attention resulting from the flight, he said.

LOVE AFTER FLIGHT

The courtroom was packed with a tensely eager crowd as Capt. Lancaster resumed his direct testimony, and in reply to questioning by chief defense counsel, bared intimate relations with Mrs. Keith-Miller in Persia, Sydney, Australia, and other places.

The questioning went on:

"When and where did you begin to love her?"

"On our flight we suffered together; went through dangerous situations together. I admired her courage. On the way to Australia we began to have much in common. When we arrived I was in love with her."

"Was it physical or unselfish love?"

"Both, but we were in the public eye, our movements were seen by many people, and there was not much opportunity to be alone."

BURKE'S HOBBY AIDING OTHERS

His favorite author was Victor Hugo, his favorite book Arnold Bennett's "How To Live." His favorite actor was George Arliss, his diversions golf and bridge. He liked apple pie but he had a hearty dislike for chocolate ice cream. His hobby was doing something for somebody.

He believed then that Pittsburgh's great need was a broader vision and less provincialism. He thought Andrew Mellon was the greatest character in Pittsburgh's history. He commented:

"'One of life's most pleasant and profitable pastimes is to keep from getting excited over trifles. Time is the most reliable of all doctors, the most rigid of all regulators. It cures the average ills and usually elevates or reduces us to the level where we belong.

"'Mediocrity rarely lasts in the social, commercial, professional or political world. Sour stomachs and swelled heads never made statesmen any more than supercilious superiority ever made social leaders. The basis of all success is work, work, work!'"

Mr. Burke's last public appearance in this city was at the laying of the cornerstone of the new postoffice several weeks ago. He had labored in behalf of the postoffice for a quarter of a century.

It was no secret that President Hoover would have liked to appoint Burke to his cabinet in 1928. However, the presence of two other Pittsburghers—Secretaries Mellon and Davis, Harding appointees—made such a move politically undesirable.

As the premier toastmaster of Pittsburgh, Mr. Burke had welcomed distinguished guests at hundreds of banquets. His eloquence in that capacity once won him praise of Woodrow Wilson.

CITY MOURNS BURKE'S DEATH

time and his services to matters of public interest in every direction in the public good. An indefatigable worker, he labored for the country he loved up to the hour of his death."

In addition, the President telegraphed his sympathy to Mrs. Burke in Pittsburgh.

It was the President who first noted Mr. Burke's condition. They were in discussion in the White House. Ill health was far from the Pittsburgher's mind, for he had planned to sail with Mrs. Burke today for a European vacation.

HOOVER CALLS DOCTOR

The President called his personal physician, Dr. Joel T. Boone.

After a lengthy examination Dr. Boone suggested Mr. Burke cancel the European trip, then ordered the patient to the Garfield Hospital.

Two hours later he died there, victim of a heart attack. The death was announced by the President.

Assisting young Burke in arranging to transport the body back to Pittsburgh was the secretary to the President.

From the President's office a large wreath of roses and ferns was ordered sent to the funeral train.

At the Burke home it was learned that original plans to hold the services on Thursday were changed to allow political leaders who will be in Washington for the President's acceptance speech to come here for the funeral.

Mr. Burke's death was mourned today by Pittsburgh business leaders. Hundreds of telephone calls carried messages of sympathy to his widow and daughter in their home.

Mr. Burke, perhaps the President's closest adviser, left Pittsburgh for Washington Sunday. As general counsel for the Republican national committee, he was expected to play an important part in the campaign, just as he had occupied a major role in the 1928 election.

FORESAW BETTER TIMES

A short time before he saw the President yesterday Mr. Burke, in an interview, saw better times ahead. The President he described as "the doctor of a disordered world; he never prescribes quack medicine." And he added:

"His medicine is proving beneficial. The patient is showing marked improvement and will continue to improve."

Mr. Burke was 65. His career began as an ambitious young court stenographer in Pittsburgh.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Josephine Scott Burke; a daughter, Mrs. Frances Burke Rodgers, and a son, James Scott Burke.

The President himself promised to make public today a letter of condolence to Mrs. Burke. Cabinet members, national leaders of the party added words of sympathy.

EVENTFUL CAREER

Death came to Mr. Burke at the height of an eventful career. Born in Petroleum Center, Venango County, October 21, 1867, he was identified nationally when no older than 25. Then he was chosen secretary of the Republican National Committee—the youngest man ever appointed to the position.

Possibly this recognition had been given him for his Republican activities as a law student at the University of Michigan, for there he had organized the National Republican College League — a movement which earned him the public approval of President Harrison.

He was in his 34th year when Pittsburgh political leaders nominated him as a candidate for Congress, but in this first elective effort he suffered one of the few defeats of his career.

Two years later, in 1904, he was nominated and elected to Congress by a decisive majority. And he remained in Washington for four terms—from 1905 to 1915.

He was in Washington only a few months before it became evident that he was not to be lost in the anonymity of the House of Representative, for in 1905 he was selected to represent his country at the peace conference in Brussels.

During his service in Congress, Burke became a member of the Banking and Currency Committee and chairman of the Military Affairs Committee.

In 1908, as a delegate to the Republican national convention, he was active in the successful fight to give northern states increased power in naming presidential candidates.

Burke's activities were varied. He prepared the Constitution of the United States Chamber of Commerce and became first counsel for that national group.

FORMED GOLF BODY

He organized the Fathers and Sons Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania nine years ago and was its only president.

For years he was identified with the United States Golf Association as counsel and a member of the rules committee.

He was a member of the group that codified the navigation laws of the land and he was counsel for the Agricultural Department of Pennsylvania.

He received his law degree from the University of Michigan, later —in 1914—Duquesne University conferred upon him the degree of doctor of laws.

These were his clubs: Oakmont County Club, Pittsburgh Field Club, Pittsburgh Club, Allegheny Country Club, Pittsburgh Athletic Association, University Club, Duquesne Club, Midiron Club, Crucible Club, Matinee Club, Press Club, Traffic Club, Twenty-four Karat Club, Beaumaris Yacht Club, Army and Navy Club, of Washington.

ENCOURAGED BY MAGEE

Burke was a young court stenographer in Pittsburgh when he decided to give up his work and study law at Michigan. In this decision he was encouraged by the then political ruler of Pittsburgh, the late Christopher Magee.

When he returned to Pittsburgh after four years he took up a law practice but soon he was to devote more of his time to political affairs.

BYERS ON TRIP WITH BURKE

James Francis Burke made his last trip to Washington with J. F. Byers, chairman of the board of directors, and L. F. Rains, president, of the A. M. Byers Company, it was revealed here today. Mr. Burke presented the industrialists to President Hoover.

During the trip, Mr. Burke admitted that he was not in good health, according to Mr. Rains. He added:

"Mr. Burke said he did not feel very well. However, Monday morning he ate a good breakfast and said he was feeling better. After breakfast we visited the Treasury Department and about noon we were presented to President Hoover. We were shocked when we learned this morning that Mr. Burke had died suddenly last night."

'Y' TO OBSERVE FOUNDER'S DAY

Arthur T. Sharps, boys' work secretary of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., will be tomorrow's noonday worship speaker. Assisting in the program will be Jack Smith, David Crawford, Vernon Atwater and Charles F. Ryman.

The Pittsburgh association, operating through 13 branches and 123 other points of contact in the district, plans observance of Founders' Day October 11. A special program will honor the memory of Sir George Williams, founder of the movement, marking the one hundred and eleventh anniversary of his birth. The eighty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the first "Y" also occurs on that day.

Ralph W. Harbison, president, has named a special committee. The first "Y" was established in Pittsburgh in 1854.

STALE GAS SHORT-CHANGES YOU

ONLY fresh GAS GIVES YOU ALL THE POWER YOU PAY FOR

How much power's in a dollar's worth of gas? Maybe a dollar's worth. Maybe 80 cents worth. Maybe less. It all depends upon the FRESHNESS of the gasoline.

For as gas gets staler, it gets weaker. It loses volatile "easy starting" elements. And—due to a chemical change in gasoline—the staler it gets—the less power it gives! It gets stickier, too—and more apt to knock.

Gulf, after long study of gas deterioration, has now perfected a system that assures you of getting FRESH gas—packed with power. How?

By refining out of its fine gasoline certain complex elements that have been found to cause rapid deterioration.

And by making sure that you get this FRESH gas in a hurry—giving it no time to get stale.

Gulf has geared its distribution system to high speed—has placed its huge refineries in many sections of the country, so that every Gulf station is close to a source of FRESH gas. A huge fleet of speedy trucks rushes FRESH-MADE gas to Gulf pumps every day.

Get all the power you pay for. Get FRESH gas—delivered FRESH—get Gulf. And have a faster, cleaner, quieter motor.

get THAT GOOD GULF GASOLINE-it's fresh

LEADERS PAY TRIBUTE TO BURKE

Andrew W. Mellon, Ambassador to the Court of St. James and former Secretary of the Treasury, today joined outstanding Pittsburghers in paying tribute to James Francis Burke.

Spending a few days at his home on Woodland road, Mr. Mellon said he was deeply shocked at the news of Mr. Burke's death. He said:

"Mr. Burke has long been an outstanding figure not only in Pittsburgh but throughout the United States. He has been one of our most useful citizens and his long years of devotion to public service has endeared him to all. His loss will be greatly felt."

Other statements included:

GEN. EDWARD MARTIN, State Republican Chairman — The death of Mr. Burke comes as a great shock to me. In his death the Republican party and the country as a whole has lost a powerful influence.

THOMAS A. DUNN, President of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce—The Chamber of Commerce and Pittsburgh have lost a wonderful man in the death of Jim Burke. He has been general counsel for the Chamber of Commerce for 17 years.

E. V. BABCOCK—Everyone in Pittsburgh will miss Mr. Burke. In the many years I was associated with him in politics and business I learned to have great admiration for his sagacity and judgment. I am indeed sorry to hear of his untimely death.

JAMES RAE, former president of the Chamber of Commerce—I'm greatly grieved to learn of his passing away. Few public men had such wide contacts and acquaintances. Pittsburgh has lost one of its most useful citizens.

WILLIAM H. COLEMAN, chairman of the Allegheny County Republican Committee—I am sorry to hear of Mr. Burke's death. He was a remarkable man and had accomplished a wonderful lot in life. His death will be a tremendous loss to the community.

W. D. MANSFIELD, County Commissioner—The sudden passing of James Francis Burke is indeed a shock to me, as I know it will be to the thousands who knew him and appreciated his worth as a counselor and a friend. Coming at this time, his demise will be a blow to the great political party he has so ably represented.

SAMUEL HARDEN CHURCH, Director Carnegie Institute: Mr. Burke was my near neighbor and a most intimate friend. He was a man of unusual mental activity whose brain constantly studied the world in all its interests. He was a thinker and orator, a composer of very graceful verses and always charming in his companionship. His death is an irreparable loss to Pittsburgh.

MRS. ENOCH RAUH, Director of Welfare, Pittsburgh: It is a profound shock and a deep grief to learn of the death of my dear and valued friend, James Francis Burke. I have admired him always for his high qualities of character of heart and of mind. He has been one of Pittsburgh's foremost citizens and his talents will be missed in high places.

DOWIES FACING LOSS OF HOME

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The Dowies, son and widow of the founder of the Zion religious cult, face ouster from their family home, Shiloh House, at Zion City, Ill.

Theodore Goldsmith, real estate dealer, who holds a $10,000 mortgage on the place, told Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady he was unable to collect.

Judge Dady gave the Rev. A. J. Gladstone Dowie and his mother seven days to show cause why they should not make payments. If payments were not made, the court indicated it would be forced to oust them.

Shiloh House was built by Dr. John Alexander Dowie, founder of the cult, and later sold. Mrs. Dowie repurchased after an absence from Zion of 20 years.

GIRL'S CHANNEL SWIM FAILS

DOVER, England, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Miss Milly Copplestone, of New Zealand, failed in an unheralded attempt to swim the English channel today, according to word received from Cape Grisnez, France.

Swimming from Cape Grisnez and charting her route to Dover, Miss Copplestone was forced to abandon the attempt at 4:40 a. m., after having been in the water four hours and 50 minutes.

No one has swum across the channel since September, 1926, when Ishak Helmy, an Egyptian, negotiated the route Miss Copplestone attempted. Previous to that six women and five men accomplished the feat within two years during a rage started by Miss Gertrude Ederle, of the United States, first woman to conquer the difficult and choppy stretch.

'PHONE SERVICE TO EGYPT OPEN

"Hello — Hello — American Consulate in Cairo, Egypt?"

"Yes."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Smith, come right out, won't you? We'll be glad to see you."

"No, you misunderstand. I'm in Pittsburgh, not Egypt."

Some such conversation as that might happen any day now. The telephone company has announced that it has established contact with Cairo and Alexandria, Egypt, from Pittsburgh.

Calls, routed through New York and London, where they are relayed by radio, can be completed, according to Division Manager William Bradford, between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m. and between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. eastern standard time.

If you're really in a hurry, Bradford says, you'll be glad to pay the $36 for the first three minutes, the $12 for each extra minute, the $4 for a report.

Missionaries for years have had to wait three weeks for mail, according to the United Presbyterian Women's Board of Foreign Missions.

HEALTH GROUP SCORES 'SPOILS'

Application of the "spoils system" to public health officers was deplored in the annual report of the General Health Council of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, issued today. The report stated:

"Irreparable losses to efficiency may be done to years of constructive health work by the removal of an efficient health officer for political reasons."

The council recently protested removal of Dr. John R. Conover as State Health Director of Allegheny County.

Co-ordination of all health activities was urged, particularly registration of patients of free clinics to prevent overlapping and adoption of uniform regulations.

'ALL-AMERICA' BROADCAST -:- Brashear Life-Story Drama on Network -:- LEGION RADIO PROGRAM

Olympic Games Fete on Air; Street Singer Makes Debut With Nat Shilkret

Christy Walsh's annual All-Sports All-America Dinner at Los Angeles, attended by members of the All-America Football Team of 1931, the All-America Track Team of 1930 and the All-America Boards of football, track and field events is heard over a coast-to-coast NBC network, including KDKA, tonight at 11:30. The program, scheduled for 30 minutes, consists of impromptu speeches by leading coaches and athletes and the principal sports and news writers covering the Olympic games. Christy Walsh, noted sports authority, acts as master of ceremonies. The All-America board teams are announced in Pittsburgh each year exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. Walsh

The life story of the late "Uncle John" Brashear, Pittsburgh scientist and one of the world's greatest makers of telescope lenses, is dramatized during the "Sheer Romance" broadcast over an NBC network from the studios of KDKA tonight at 6:30, with Alma Lynd, Leon Churcheon and Claude Morris portraying the principal roles. Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director of the Allegheny Observatory, is guest speaker.

That roving vagabond of melody, the Street Singer (Arthur Tracy), makes his debut as a member of the Etting-Boswell-Shilkret-Brokenshire organization when he presents a varied program with Nat Shilkret's orchestra on WJAS tonight at 10 o'clock. Selection of the Street Singer for the series climaxes a meteoric career which saw him begin as a trouping tenor on the operatic stage and rise, in the past year, to stardom in radio and vaudeville. Ruth Etting and the Boswell Sisters retain their original schedules in the series, while the Street Singer will be heard each Tuesday and Friday night at the same hour.

Program Pointers

Lieut. James Hays, of Sewickley, tells the story of "The Distress Signal," a gripping navy tale of the World War, during the American Legion program on WCAE tonight at 8:30. Music is provided by an orchestra directed by David Levin and Raymond Griffin, basso.

Lieut. Hays

Present day conditions in the field of banking are discussed by J. C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, during the second of a series of industrial world talks on KDKA tonight at 7:15.

One of the most spectacular crimes in recent years is re-enacted on WCAE tonight at 10 when "The Daylight Diamond Robbery," another real-life dramatization taken from the New York police files, is presented as a highlight of the dance hour.

"Brigade Exchange," Ernest Johannsen's drama of the war behind the German lines, is presented over an NBC network including KDKA tonight at 8.

Outstanding symphonic works by Beethoven, Schubert, Tchaikovsky and Haydn comprise the Goldman Band program on KDKA at 9:30.

Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit feature hits from "Tip Toes" and "Watch Your Step" on WCAE at 8 tonight.

Edward Davies, noted baritone, returns to share honors with Alice Mock on KDKA at 9 o'clock.

The weekly Paul Whiteman auditions in the Cascades, atop the Hotel Biltmore, go on the air beginning tomorrow at 11 a. m. The long line of radio hopefuls that parades each week before the king of jazz will be heard at that time by a country-wide audience over an NBC-WJZ network, including KDKA.

Seibel Discusses Theater Tonight

George Seibel, dramatic and literary critic of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, gives a talk of interest to all theatergoers during his regular "Plays and Players" broadcast on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

Uncle Bob and Betty read the Sun-Telegraph comic pages for WCAE listeners tonight at 6, providing 15 minutes of delightful fun and chatter.

Speaking from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the latest news at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Peggy tells Pittsburgh shoppers about the city's outstanding bargains during her "Peggy's Tips" talk on WCAE tomorrow morning at 9.

Fan Fare

Miss Moss

The necessary equipment of the NBC Music Library includes a hand truck. It is used to haul some of the larger music scores to and from the studios. Among the heaviest is the complete orchestral score of Wagner's "Parsifal," which weighs 125 pounds.

Although he doesn't mention the scores, Johnny Johnson, whose orchestra is heard nightly on WWSW, holds at least one golf record. He played seven successive rounds in seven days in seven different states—one round each in Sioux City, Iowa; Omaha, Neb.; Kansas City, Mo.; Kansas City, Kan.; Vandalia, Ill.; French Lick, Ind., and Louisville, Ky.

Alice Joy opened a new series of programs at WTAM the other night . . . She's on the air Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings at 10:30 and Sunday nights at 8.

Wonder what the stars do in their spare moments? Amos 'n' Andy play handball . . . Jane Froman and Lucille Long dial for distant stations . . . Harry Kogen goes in for chess . . . Georgie Price boxes . . . and Eddie Duchin plays polo . . . Bridge is a favorite diversion, as are golf and tennis, and car owners outnumber pedestrians.

THINK OF THIS When Buying GROCERIES

There's a great deal more than merely purchasing food when you market. So many things make for satisfaction or dissatisfaction. So many things mean saving or waste. Things that may not be immediately apparent. That's why you will appreciate the protection and confidence you get from trading with an accredited and reliable grocer—one who really has your best interest at heart—one who is permanently established in this town as part of it. That type of grocer is able, from natural circumstances to handle your needs better. He has a greater desire to serve you, a friendly interest backed by definite ability and advantages. It is on that basis that he solicits and deserves your regular patronage.

1—He buys in carload lots.
2—He has no high-salaried overhead.
3—Employe turnover is less.
4—He takes advantage of every market change to bring you savings.
5—Weights and measures are generous—never short.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Society Happenings

In Maytair —With— Patricia Pitt

The young set down in Sewickley has been doing such a variety of things these summer days that it's no wonder they look so jolly and refreshingly carefree to their elders.

Margaret Meanor has gone to Elkhorn Hall in Estes Park, where she's the guest of Peggy and Maria Leiper.

Attend Party

She's been the house guest of Hester Murtland Lyons, daughter of the Prescott Lyons. Among the many parties Hester and her house guest attended was a delightful entertainment Leaugeay Stevenson gave in her home, Coraopolis Heights, for her house guest, Kathleen Boyd.

There was a buffet supper and for an entertainment, a reproduction of Monte Carlo. Games of all sorts and dancing were featured.

From far-away Seattle comes word that a girl from the West Coast will marry a Pittsburgh son. Emilie Josephine Von Phul, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Philip V. Von Phul, of Seattle, Wash., has chosen August 17 as the date for her marriage to Daniel James Conley, son of Mrs. Thomas Conley, of Pittsburgh.

Wedding Date Set

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Forest Ridge Convent and attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Menlo Park, Cal. She is a member of the Seattle Junior League. Her fiance is a graduate of Notre Dame. The wedding will take place, as one might expect, in Seattle.

The Edgeworth Club is the scene of more entertainments and events, formal and informal, than any other social club round about, I do believe. Now the club is planning a series of three orchestra concerts, to be given on the clubhouse lawn three Sunday evenings in late August and September. And the concerts will benefit the Sewickley Valley Welfare Fund.

Concerts Planned

Arranging the concerts are members of the entertainment committee, including vivacious Miss Dorothy Slack, J. Twing Brooks and Charles J. Ramsburg.

Victor Saudek will conduct the orchestra, to be composed of many players in the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Margaret Phillips, daughter of the John M. Phillipses, of Brownsville road, has had as her house guest this week Esther Porter, of Montclair, N. J. Margaret and her guest were graduated in June from Vassar.

Mrs. A. G. Russell, who was on the finance committee of the Forum Club last year, is leaving Pittsburgh to make her home in the East. In farewell several members of the club are entertaining informally for her. Mrs. J. Raymond Breen and Mrs. John L. Stevens are joint hostesses at a bridge luncheon today in Mrs. Stevens' home, Peermont avenue, Dormont. Mrs. Charles Goldthwaite entertained with a similar event last Thursday.

Sara M. Stinchfield, Former Teacher Here, Marries

Of interest in educational circles here is the marriage of Miss Sara M. Stinchfield, formerly of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Charles Lyle Hawk, of Hollywood, which took place July 30 at noon in the University Methodist Church, Los Angeles, with the Rev. W. C. Hodgson officiating.

The bride, a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, class of '14, and a member of Pi Lambda Theta honorary society, Pittsburgh chapter, taught for several years in Pittsburgh schools and in Ben Avon High School.

She recently was an associate professor at Mt. Holyoke. Last winter she spent in Europe, doing research study in Vienna and London. She is the author of several books on the psychology of speech and speech correction.

Dr. Hawk is a graduate of Iowa Medical College, where he specialized in surgery and where he was at one time an instructor.

Dr. and Mrs. Hawk, after a brief honeymoon, are at home in Hollywood.

Miss Helen Koehrer, daughter of John Koehrer, of Delafield road, Aspinwall, has chosen Saturday, August 20, as the date of her marriage to Norman H. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Anderson, of Providence, R. I.

Because of illness in the family, Miss Koehrer is planning a small informal home ceremony. Mrs. Edward Hilger, of the East End, will be matron of honor, and John McCredie, of Aspinwall, will be best man.

A breakfast in the Hotel Schenley will follow the wedding, and later Mr. Anderson and his bride will go by airplane to New York, from where they will sail to Bermuda for their honeymoon.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- BY SALLY MARTIN

Not One Girl in Million Is Husband's First Love

And for why?

Because her husband had a sweetie before he met her!

And plainly, she's expecting us to turn on the weeps for her. I'll admit she needs sympathy—but not for the reason she thinks!

Listen!

"Dear Sally—

"I have been married for almost seven months, and I am coming to you for advice. I have no one else to ask, not even my husband, because this concerns him—and my heart is breaking. Please help me!

"I met my husband just one year ago. After going with him for three weeks, he gave me a friendship ring. Being in the jewelry business, I noticed it was worn, but I never gave it a serious thought, believing he had bought it from someone I loved him and he said he loved me. I believed him to be different from all the other boys I knew. He was my ideal and my god. In three months we were engaged, and two months later married.

HAPPINESS MARRED

"We were so happy, until yesterday! Then he told me that before he met me he had kept company with another girl for a year, and had given her the friendship ring—and then they broke off.

"When he told me this I wished I were dead. I thought he loved me, whereas I was only second-fiddle. And everybody must have been laughing behind my back, because anyone could see how crazy I was about him, and all the time they recalled how he must have kissed this other girl and cared for this other girl.

"Everyone told me they thought he never would settle down, or fall in love with any girl, when in reality he had already had a sweetheart.

"I'm telling you I don't know what to do. How can I face his relatives, and pretend to be happy, when at heart I am just as shame-faced and broken-hearted as can be?

"Please help me. I have no one else to go to, because I feel so ashamed.

"KENELLA."

Well, well! Who're you trying to kid, Sister; me, or yourself? Because if you're not kidding, you certainly are the world's record sap.

STOP FOOLISHNESS

Why shouldn't the big boy have had love affairs before he met you? Most people fall in and out of love a dozen times before they finally meet the One and Only. So snap out of your foolishness, and realize that even if that husband of yours is your ideal and all the rest of it, he is still a human being.

Stop being a silly little dunce, and use common sense on that marriage of yours, if you don't want to wreck it.

Quit taking yourself and your sentimental notions so seriously. The chances are that nobody is laughing at you; but they will, if they ever discover that you're having the jitters because your husband once had a girl before he met you.

USE YOUR HEAD

If he had had a score of sweethearts, it would be no reflection on you, and no sign that you aren't the one big love of his life.

But you won't be a bright spot in his life for long if you don't get next to yourself, and use your head to hold something besides a hat.

Grow up, sister, and stop mooning around in the clouds. Not one gal in a million is her husband's first love; but that doesn't keep their marriages from being fine comradeships and big, thrilling adventures.

Men Looking for Sensible Girls Usually See Only Classy Ones—Fay King

When a young man complains that it is hard these days to find a sensible girl who will marry and manage on a modest salary, I always smile.

For if you will question him a little you will find that he may be looking FOR a sensible girl but he is always looking AT a classy one.

There are sensible girls to the right of him, and sensible girls to the left of him, but he sees only the classy one just ahead of him.

And the girl with style and beauty parlor grooming he admires may really be very sensible and economical, too, but he would actually be disappointed to discover it.

He really is interested only in girls who look and talk luxury!

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Repealing the Law of Mathematics

When a player holds 7 honor-tricks and the opponents venture as high as a contract of four, the holder of the 7 honor-trick hand cannot be too severely criticized for making a Penalty Double, when the opposing players, disregarding apparently the law of mathematics, have reached the game contract before the holder of the big hand had a chance to show his strength.

However, they do things in a big way out on the Pacific coast, and to Mr. C. L. Meyers of Portland, Ore., I am indebted for this story of the hand shown below:

North—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ K J 9 7 3 ♡ Q J 10 9 2 ◇ — ♣ K J 2
♠ A Q ♡ A K ◇ A K 7 6 5 3 ♣ A Q 10	North / West / East / South	♠ — ♡ 8 7 6 4 3 ◇ 4 2 ♣ 9 8 7 6 5
	♠ 10 8 6 5 4 2 ♡ — ◇ Q J 10 9 8 ♣ 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1 ♠ (1)	Pass
4 ♠ (2)	Double (3)	Redouble (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) Regardless of the fortunate outcome, this hand is scarcely strong enough for an Opening bid, vulnerable.

(2) South's hand counts exactly 6 playing-tricks in support of partner's Opening bid. Inasmuch as it contains practically no defensive honor strength, the Raise to game should be made with the full realization that possibly not all the playing-tricks may materialize in actual play.

(3) As the bidding has already reached game, West's Double can only be for penalties. Unfortunately, the freakish distribution makes it impossible for East and West to hope to play the hand advantageously, despite the 7 honor-tricks in the West hand.

(4) Much too optimistic. North had the barest of Opening bids—in fact, it did not measure up to an Opening bid, vulnerable — and the Redouble is tempting fate.

Despite West's magnificent honor holding, the distribution was so favorable to North and South, due to the void in hearts in the South hand and the void in diamonds in the North hand, that North not only made his contract, but an overtrick as well.

I rather dislike to report the result obtained on this hand, because it was played in one of those inter-family affairs, in which the dominant males of two families were sitting North and South, while the ladies were East and West. The North player, who sent in the hand, remarked that they "gave the girls a big laugh."

TODAY'S QUESTION

Partner having opened with a bid of one heart and Second Hand passing, what is the proper response with the following hand:

♠ Q J ♡ A J 7 6 4 ◇ A J 3 ♣ A Q 2

Answer: Four hearts. The Responding Hand does not have a bidable suit with which to make a Forcing Takeout and the other alternative is to raise the full value of the hand.

Household Hints

You will find silk underwear, dresses, etc., will iron beautifully if folded when dry and wrapped in the center of the bundle of sprinkled clothes.

When washing heavy blouses, shirts, etc., hang each one separately on a wooden clothes hanger and then hang on the line. They will dry more quickly and in better shape than when pinned directly on the line.

Hang colored clothes on the line wrongside out and in a good current of air. Then they will dry quickly. Keep an eye on them so they can be brought in out of the hot summer sun as soon as they are dry.

It's Foolish to Neglect Rupture

Hernia, or "rupture," as it is more commonly called, is frequently met by doctors and is an affliction that often is neglected. It is not a disease, but a defect due to mechanical weakness of certain parts of the body. This defect may be present at birth, or may be the result of severe muscular strain. It is often seen among workers who lift weights or use foot pressure.

Dr. Copeland

At birth there are three weak spots in the abdominal wall, located at what the doctors call the "inguinal," "femoral" and "umbilical" parts of the abdomen. These weaknesses may persist through life or they may disappear. When the weakness persists in an individual whose occupation requires severe exertion, rupture is likely to occur. The danger is accentuated also by persistent coughing, as in chronic asthma and tuberculosis.

As time goes on the rupture grows larger and larger. There may be little pain and discomfort at first, but these develop when the protrusion is sufficiently large and when it interferes with the normal activities of the victim.

I am often asked whether a rupture can be cured by wearing a truss. It is the opinion of most physicians that wearing a truss weakens the natural resistance of the tissues and in many instances does more harm than good. In certain cases, where the general health is poor and the afflicted person is well on in years, a truss may be worn. This is advised for the prevention of strangulation.

In younger persons the rupture should be operated, for that is the only sure method of cure. The operation is rather simple and need not cause alarm, and in many instances is performed under a local anesthetic. In such cases coughing and pain are avoided.

Umbilical hernia, most commonly seen in infants and young children, occurs shortly after birth and is caused by a weakness of the muscles around the umbilicus. The wise parent never overlooks this condition, but insists upon an early operation.

"Herniotomy," the operation for rupture, should not be dreaded. Many persons fear this operation, but in reality they should dread and fear a hernia which is not operated upon.

Correct Manners

Wedding Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Sometime ago I read in your column a form for a wedding invitation that was worded: "Mr. and Mrs. Jones request the pleasure of your company." I like this form much better than "The honor of your presence." Would you be kind enough to write that over again for me? Don't you think it would be much nicer to use that form for a morning wedding?

2. Will you please let me know what the groom wears and the best man at a morning wedding? M. T.

1. There is between these forms a deeper significance than the mere choosing of the one we prefer. It is this: the invitation to the church ceremony, no matter what time of day or evening it is reads: request the honour of your presence. (And honour must always be spelled with the "u.")

On the other hand, for the invitation to the wedding which is not in church (in a home for instance, or in a hotel) or for the wedding reception, breakfast, dinner, we use the form request the pleasure of your company.

2. If the morning wedding is formal, that is, if the bride plans to wear the traditional white dress and bridal veil, the groom and his attendants then have to dress with corresponding formality . . . they wear cutaway coats and dark striped trousers.

If the wedding is to be informal, the men may wear dark business suits.

The Growing Girl

When making slips for the growing girl (who is almost bound to have dresses of various lengths) it is wise not to join the shoulder seams, but have snaps in a series of three about an inch apart that will govern the length of the slip. Then the slip can be snapped together at whatever snap fits the length of the dress worn at the time.

TRICOLOR COMBINATION AN OLD PARISIAN FAVORITE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 9. — Red, white and blue as a fashionable color scheme may mean the Washington bicentennial to American women, but to the French it is merely an old favorite. The tricolor has for years been the pet color combination for clothes of the sports type, and for those costumes which may be worn in or out of town for an average day.

PARIS IS AN old hand at this color plan, and knows how to use it in many subtle ways. The usual trick is to make a costume entirely of one of the colors and to add the other two in touches via scarfs or gloves or belts.

MOLYNEUX, WHO has always used navy blue as a color for street clothes, features it this year in a number of costumes that were designed for those women who live in the country, yet spend a good part of their day in town. An outfit of this type must look inconspicuous on the street, yet be sufficiently casual to be at home in the country or on the beach.

HIS JERSEY SUIT, in today's sketch, is one of this type. It is a dress-and-jacket combination which has all the appearances of a tailored suit. The jacket is simply designed, along masculine lines, with a single breasted fastening and knotched collar. Remove the jacket, and the dress appears, with its white top and red leather belt, as an ideal sports frock.

Woodruff No 'Yes' Man; May Head P.S.C.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 9.—What manner of man is Public Service Commissioner George W. Woodruff? It is a question which should concern every patron of public utilities in Pennsylvania, for every indication is that this long-time friend of Gov. Pinchot is to be chairman of the Public Service Commission in succession to W. D. B. Ainey, resigned under charges that he had been the beneficiary of gratuities from utility companies.

Mr. Shields

This is to be no picture of Judge Woodruff's pulchritude, but, rather, an exposition of his mental habits and principles, and the best way to start is to say he will never be victim of the same circumstances which led to the departure of Mr. Ainey. His physical characteristics are unimportant. Apollo might have been a total loss as a Public Service Commission chairman.

Judge Woodruff, whose title is derived from service on the territorial bench of Hawaii, has long been in public life and early in this service formed the acquaintance of Gifford Pinchot. Both are Yale graduates. Both served in the Federal Forestry Department, the judge as legal adviser to the bureau in which Pinchot functioned as forester.

Woodruff was an assistant attorney general of the United States assigned to the Interior Department, when Pinchot had his famous row with Secretary Ballonger in the Taft administration, a national incident which first brought Pinchot to the attention of the country. The association formed between Pinchot and Woodruff in those days has been unbroken, and when Pinchot, after many vicissitudes became Governor of Pennsylvania, Woodruff became his attorney general.

Former Football Star No "Yes" Man

But the Judge is no "yes-man" to Pinchot. He retains the force and independence which made him one of the University of Pennsylvania's greatest football guards. He has the same willingness to explore new fields which led to the innovation when he was coach of the Red and Blue of the famous guards-back formation, a crunching attack in the days when football was modified murder.

Should he become chairman of the Public Service Commission he will make no decision simply because Pinchot wants him to. He will do his own thinking, reach his own conclusions, and act accordingly. He will be thoroughly honest, thoroughly sincere, and decide between utilities and the ratepayers as the evidence dictates his extremely legalistic mind.

In the process of his thinking the Judge may be guilty of circumlocution. He may be exasperating. He may think in circles. He may be much like a man who wants to cross from the City-County Building to the Courthouse, and travels that short distance by way of Fourth avenue to Smithfield street, to the Pennsylvania station, over the hill to the Soho bath house and then down Fifth avenue to the Courthouse.

But he will have seen much on the way, he will have absorbed what he has seen, and upon reaching his destination he will have extremely sound and strongly defensible conclusions.

In conversation the Judge is given to "thinking out loud." He may seem in discussion to branch into irrelevancies, to take excursions aimlessly extraneous to the subject at hand. Don't be deceived. The Judge is thinking of the central subject all the time, and his verbal outpourings are mere sparks shot off from central and hard thinking. The Judge won't deceive you, but you may deceive yourself if you do not believe he is paying strict attention to the nub of the discourse.

When Attorney General, the Judge once drove his car from Harrisburg to Williamsport with the brakes partially on. There was much derisive comment, but the Judge was employed by Mr. Pinchot as an attorney general, and not a chauffeur—which explains everything.

As attorney general it was often remarked that other men in the office did the work, the succinct thinking. But those same men will tell you now that the Judge, apparently paying little attention to the subject, would take those same briefs, slash them to pieces, and rewrite them with a punch, and in a form capable of legal defense before the most meticulous courts.

Noted for Fairness, Tireless Labors

He is fair. He is not slow to chide himself when he thinks he has been mistaken. He is a tireless worker, and honest within any interpretation of the word.

Because of his apparently detached manner toward important subjects, the appearance of wandering in his thinking, George Woodruff is one of the least understoood and most underrated men who ever devoted his time to public life. If chosen chairman of the Public Service Commission he will be just what the title implies, one concerned first about public service, reaching what he believes be just decisions, without respect to whether they favor the public, the utilities or Gov. Pinchot. He will not know politics.

Paradoxically Woodruff and Ainey were both born in Susquehanna County. They were boyhood friends, and at the time the fatal charges were filed against Ainey the two were negotiating the form that a request for the resignation of Public Service Commissioner Emerson Collins should take.

Bans Food, Dies So Family May Eat

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Food was scarce in the home of Charles Maust, 35, near this city.

Realizing the county's $10 monthly relief allowance would scarcely feed his wife and five children, and unable to find work, Maust finally resolved to stop eating that the family might have enough.

Last Tuesday he became critically ill and was rushed to the Uniontown Hospital.

Lost Homestead Boy Hunted by Police

Police and the Missing Persons Bureau today were searching for George Davis, 10, of 333 West Fifteenth avenue, Homestead, who disappeared from his home three weeks ago.

3 GAS STATIONS HELD UP BY SAME GANG

Take Safe With $1,000; Bind, Gag 2 Victims, Kidnap 2 Others

A gang of service station robbers held up three stations during the night. In one case they carted away a huge safe containing about $1,000, and bound and gagged two employes. In the other two instances they kidnaped attendants. The same men are blamed by police for all the holdups.

Entering the station of the Firestone Service Stores, Inc., at 5633 Baum boulevard early today, three armed and masked men held up two attendants. They bound and gagged them, stole the safe, a truck, a quantity of tires and emptied the cash register. The safe contained about $1,000, J. C. Sanford, manager, declared. He said there was approximately $100 in the register.

Joseph Messey, of 252 Ater way, and Arthur Johns, a Negro, of 230 Paulson avenue, the attendants, were first gagged and the gags taped in their mouths. Then their wrists and ankles were bound and finally they were covered with yards of cloth removed from a shelf in the shop. Then they were tied to fixtures.

Allen Hill, an attendant at a nearby station who helped to release the pair, said:

"Those boys were tied, and I don't mean maybe. It took us a half hour to get them loose."

There were four men in the other two holdups, both on the North Side. The quartet first held up James Edmond, of 721 Kirkpatrick street, in the Acme Garage, 807 East Diamond street, where he was employed. They selected an automobile and forced Edmond to accompany them.

In Columbus avenue, near St. Ives street, the bandits stopped the car and threw Edmond out. Then they sped to the Downes service station, at 1000 Columbus avenue, where they held up H. C. Brindle, of 903 Lysle street, the attendant.

After robbing Brindle of $7, the thugs forced him into the machine, drove to the Fulton Street Bridge and hurled him out.

Three armed men early today entered the restaurant of Albert Casslea, at 1429 Reedsdale street, North Side, and held up Casslea, who was alone in the place. They escaped after taking $25 from the cash register, police were informed.

NEEDY IN CITY ALSO AIDED BY ACTION

Money for Four Weeks' Relief Work Supplied, Bond Issue Delayed

Distressed families of Allegheny County today were relieved of the hardships of half rations by the Poor Board's action making available $250,000 for relief purposes, enough to carry on the county work for about four weeks.

Meanwhile, families dependent upon the Allegheny County Emergency Association and the Welfare Fund, expected an end to their half rations, begun last Saturday, as the Poor Board's action of yesterday released funds for city use.

The board's action followed a meeting of the Poor Directors and the County Commissioners, in which an $800,000 bond issue for relief was held up, owing to doubts of its legality.

As a stop-gap, to carry the load either until the bonds could be issued or until state or federal relief was obtained, the $250,000 was made available.

The city, August 16, will open bids on an $800,000 bond issue for relief. Advantageous sale was hoped for, according to City Controller James P. Kerr, following receipt of more inquiries than were ever received about former bond issues in Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, an increase in child peddlers and beggars, attributed to the depression, caused Royal S. Goldsbury, a director of the Children's Service Bureau of Allegheny County, to warn the public that it is being imposed upon.

He said during a talk over radio station KDKA:

"Complaints of children begging on the streets reach the Children's Service Bureau almost daily. These children are being systematically trained in chronic dependency.

"One well-known family of expert child beggars has been guaranteed support by a private family welfare agency if the father will agree to keep the children off the streets. He will make no such promise. In such cases, the only way to protect the children is by arresting the parents under a Pennsylvania law which provides that using children as mendicants is a misdemeanor."

The public, he said, should inform the bureau of such cases.

SON IDENTIFIES RIVER VICTIM

The body of a man recovered yesterday from the Allegheny River at Harmarville was identified at the county morgue last night as that of John J. Zeglot, Sr., 45, a tailor, of 2215 Charles street, North Side.

John J. Zeglot, Jr., a son, who identified the body, told Deputy Coroner Stanley Guzenski that his father disappeared August 1, when he left his shop to purchase some cloth downtown. The elder Zeglot was in good spirits at the time, according to the son.

CITY TO SEEK VIADUCT BIDS

City Engineer Charles M. Reppert today said he will advertise for bids soon for the steel work for the proposed Mt. Washington roadway viaduct No. 2 to span Arlington avenue. The estimated cost is $35,000.

He also will advertise for bids for repairing one of the filter roofs of the filtration plant at Aspinwall, which caved in last year.

Reppert said plans for the proposed wharf improvements will be

New Policy Adopted By Commissioners

The County Commissioners have inaugurated a new policy at their meetings. As each department head's business before the board is finished they are excused. Since the new board went into office in January the "cabinet" has sat through each meeting. The policy of dismisisng the heads was started at yesterday's meeting.

Kline Can Save City $200,000 By Balking Unneeded Projects

If Mayor Charles H. Kline would raise his finger, the city taxpayers could be saved over $200,000 by postponing two specific street and bridge projects.

One is the California avenue curve elimination, to cost $110,000.

The other is the Herron Avenue Bridge, now closed to traffic. Repairs to it are to cost over $100,000.

Neither is necessary at this time.

City Council passed an ordinance permitting the California avenue curve elimination. It can be projected by the Department of Public Works anytime. It is an extravagance now. It was when the ordinance came up.

Several Councilmen objected, including P. J. McArdle, declaring it unnecessary.

Near Sedgwick street, California avenue curves in a half moon. The street was recently paved. It would serve, perhaps for five years, without repairing.

The $110,000 project eliminates the curve. It would improve the street, undoubtedly, but the curve has been there many years, and the people now cannot afford to pay for this or a hundred and one other similar improvements that could be made in the city.

ELIMINATE WASTE IN GOVERNMENT

The Pittsburgh Railways Company, which also would be obligated to pay its portion in changing tracks and repaving, declares its revenue is impaired. It cannot afford such improvements and the project imposes an unneeded expense on it.

Neither can the taxpayers afford it, more so because California avenue is an alternate thoroughfare, many motorists using the Chateau street route. Like the railways, the peoples' incomes are way down.

When the city taxpayers' ability to pay for improvements increases, then the Public Works Department should consider the project.

The Herron Avenue Bridge over railroad tracks is similar. It needs rebuilding, almost, to accommodate heavy trucks, which, since it was closed, are using the Twenty-eight Street Bridge. A few thousand dollars would fit it for light traffic. Heavy traffic can use the Twenty-eighth street span. Otherwise, the traffic demands on the Herron Avenue Bridge are light.

The bridge can be rebuilt later. When it is, the site should be changed, to eliminate a sharp approach that trucks now can barely use.

Then the $100,000 might be profitably spent. But in the meanwhile, it can be closed to heavy traffic. The taxpayers who cannot afford to pay will feel, like the bridge, a lightened load.

The Mayor can stop these by a telephone call. Halting both improvements, neither imperative, and the California avenue almost a waste, would save $200,000.

BEST PLEADING FOR HOME BANK

William E. Best, Pittsburgh member of the recently formed Federal Home Loan Bank Board, laid plans in Washington today for an attempt to locate one of the bank branches in Pittsburgh.

Best, a former Dormont Burgess, left Pittsburgh last night. Dormont officials saw him off at the Pennsylvania Station.

Best expressed the belief that Pittsburgh will be favored by the home loan bank board as a location for one of the district banks. He said:

"Every effort will be made to show members of the board the advantages of a Pittsburgh location. A tremendous amount of work must be done before the home loan banks can begin operations, but with work starting at once it may be possible to have the system in operation by October. These banks will be of inestimable aid to home owners, I believe, through the loosening up of funds of the building and loan associations, insurance companies and savings banks.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 8.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

You folks all over the U. S. that thought these Olympic games was just some real estate racket of Los Angeles and didn't come, you have been badly fooled. You have missed the greatest show from every angle that was ever held in America. Regardless of hard times there has been from 70 to 105 thousand people every day. Regardless of this old town's boosting and blowing, they certainly come through beautiful. It was dignified, impressive, and thrilling, and you have just missed something you won't get to see again during our lifetime, and say, don't worry about the Japanese flying over here in case of war. Those birds will swim over. The Argentine won the Maraton 26 miles long. He could stand it, but fainted during his Argentine national anthem. That is the longest tune in the world and was written to be played during Marathon. Yours,

Calvin Able To Be Absent At Herb's Fete

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Cal Coolidge can't be present at the Hoover notification jamboree and Herbert sure appreciates it.

Cal realizes that he might steal the spotlight and that he shouldn't blow out any candles on Herbert's political cake.

Besides the White House watchdog might wag his little tail when he saw Cal. Everything means something in politics.

There will be a big reception when Herbert gets the belated certificate. The affair will be informal. Wear anything you can afford.

We kind of suspect that Mr. Hoover will be wearing a graduation gown. When Cal says it's strictly Herbert's party he also means that second Tuesday in November.

Cal ain't never been a man who figured to get sunburned from reflected glory. When he goes to the White House it ain't on an invitation. It's on a lease.

And, anyway, it would break Cal's heart to see all his boyhood toys in another's hands. You know when a man has used a veto for a couple administrations he gets to love it.

POULTRY FLOCK OF WOMAN POISONED

Mrs. Marcella Cashmere, 23, who supports herself by the sale of eggs from a chicken and geese farm on McCoy avenue, Stowe Township, complained today to county detectives that her entire flock—60 chickens and 14 geese had died mysteriously.

A short time after her departure, Andrew Juquiski, a neighbor, was arrested and held in $1,000 bond for a hearing on a charge of cruelty to animals.

Mrs. Cashmere told Acting Detective Chief James S. McGinley she suspected poisoning. A chemical examination of the contents of the fowls' stomach was ordered.

Service charges and rates, the committee declared, are "excessive and against the interest of the citizens," and the company's service was termed "insufficient, inadequate and not in compliance with terms and conditions of the contract entered into between the water company and the township."

Changes in the service and rates urged by the committee include elimination of the annual service charge to domestic consumers, or reduction to a nominal charge, a reduction of domestic consumers' rates, and maintenance of pressure adequate for both fire fighting and domestic needs.

The commissioners voted to meet later with the committee and discuss the proposals. A copy of the report was sent to the water company.

George P. Kountz, chairman of the committee, expressed the opinion that after Gov. Pinchot reorganizes the Public Service Commission it will be unnecessary for the township to build its own plant, as lower rate schedules will probably be enforced by the new body.

WOMAN AGAINST HOOVER, ONCE SCHOOLMATE

A Pittsburgh woman who many years ago attended grade school with President Hoover in West Branch, Ia., the executive's birthplace, said today that her shouting days for the President are finished.

She is Mrs. Louisa Hollaway, 58, of 1113 Illinois avenue. She said:

"I'm sorely disappointed in Hoover. Four years ago I shouted for him, but now I'm finished. This time I'm going to vote for the man who will do the most good."

Mrs. Holloway recalled the days when President Hoover lived in West Branch as a boy and how all the children of the town used to play hide-and-seek on the church lawn. "Herbie," as she called him, always joined the game.

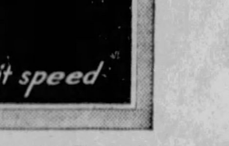
In case you are skeptical about TERRAPLANING here's the evidence!



Women everywhere will be interested to know that Miss Amelia Earhart, who christened the ESSEX TERRAPLANE, is herself the first woman in the world to own one of these new type cars

Hence, when a car that is really new and revolutionary is ready for description, the language is weak from abuse.

That's why it takes a new word—TERRAPLANING—to picture the joyously thrilling performance of this radically new-type car, the ESSEX.

It's a totally different kind of performance—a skimming, dashing, get-there, safely close-to-the-road swift smooth motion such as has not been enjoyed before except in planing on the water or in the air!

We feel it is idle to challenge your credulity with generalities about this performance.

Your experience with conventional cars will probably discount the glowing things we might say about its nimble surging getaway, its split-second acceleration, its dogged whisper-quiet six-cylindered pneumounted power on the hills.

So we asked the scientists of Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, New York University, to measure the action of the ESSEX TERRAPLANE against earlier designs.

Just to make it interesting, we suggested it be matched not merely against cars competitively priced but against the costliest and finest mechanisms that American automotive engineering genius has devised.

Look them over, see what TERRAPLANING means, and then remember you get it in the new ESSEX at a price that's actually down among and UNDER the former lowest-priced Three!

Back of the ESSEX TERRAPLANE is not only more than 200,000 miles of road-testing, but the experience and capacity of Hudson, one of the oldest and most progressive manufacturers in the automobile industry—a company which for nearly a quarter-century has been distinguished by advanced engineering, sound manufacturing and dependable value in all its products

LAD TORTURED, FATHER HELD

Accused with having seared the lips of his young son with a hot poker because the boy used profane words, John Reed, 32, of 9 Romeo street, was held for the Humane Society today in Morals Court by Magistrate Thomas D Jones.

The boy, Lawrence, 9, undersized and undernourished, with his mother, Mrs. Agnes Reed, 30, appeared against Reed. Mrs. Reed said her husband heated the poker in a coal stove and rubbed it against the boy's lips because he swore.

Lawrence told the court he had been playing with other boys near his home and that when he went home he used several words he heard the other children use.

Reed admitted he had burned the child. He said:

"I was drinking a little and when Lawrence used vile words I thought the best way to break him of the habit would be to burn his lips."

The reason is very simple. Lux keeps the silk of the stockings elastic. So it stretches easily, and comes right back into shape without breaking. Other ways of washing—rubbing with cake soap or using soaps containing harmful alkali—too often take the life out of the silk. Threads become brittle—apt to snap at the least strain—then runs start.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But which you knew all along).

That if you have brown eyes and marry someone with blue eyes, it's a three-to-one bet your issue will have azure orbs.

That the depression began five months before the Stock Market crash of October-November, 1929.

That Verdi wrote his greatest operas when he was 70.

That owing to the calamitous drop in the general level during the past few years, the cash value of the human body (iron, salt, fats, et., that can be assembled at any drug store) has fallen from 98c to 67c. (So you see. You think you're somebody, eh?)

That when you raise your hand in a Chinese movie theater they throw a towel at you to wipe the persp from your brow.

That the Bronx Cocktail was named after the Bronx Zoo because "it had a little bit of everything."

That the most dangerous lightning comes from the ground.

That philanthropy is now rated as the seventh largest business in America in point of funds administered.

That the late Thomas Bata, the Czecho-Slovak Ford of the shoe industry, required all his male employes to be married by the age of 25. He had 20,000 on his payroll. (Baby needs shoes.)

That no matter what you've heard, the Gulf Stream has an almost negligible effect on the U. S. weather conditions.

That many of the models who posed for Raphael's masterpieces were epileptics. (A Baltimore physician can prove it).

That an Austrian inventor made a hobby of loosening bolts and rivets at railroad tracks, causing scores of wrecks and catastrophes, in order to promote his device for preventing railroad accidents.

That although famous all over Europe as a "mass murderer," the culprit was sentenced to only six years' imprisonment.

That, according to government divorce statistics, marriages growing from college romances are most enduring. (Rah, rah).

That the measured speed of a driver when it connects with a golf ball is from 70 to 125 miles an hour.

That a new pair of pants on the market which sells for $1.75 guarantees you a dime for every lost button, and $1 if it rips.

That President David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford University hoaxed the leading scientists of America with a fake research report, which he solemnly published as a new epoch-making discovery, and which received enthusiastic plaudits from men all over the United States.

That Jordan engineered the whole scheme to prove the futility of a great deal that passes for scientific research as well as the stupidity of many so-called experts. (Bravo!)

That in 1474, in the Swiss town of Basle, they arrested a rooster for laying an egg. They tried him—found him guilty of witchcraft and then burned him at the stake. (What dopes!)

That they are now making flour from fish!

That the chances of you getting hit by lightning this year are one in 500,000. And one in 7,000 any year, according to insurance men.

That an Austrian baron, found guilty of cheating at cards, has been sentenced to a year's rigorous imprisonment, with a day of fasting every month. He was nabbed while cheating at baccarat.

That there is a colony about 170 miles from Paris where the people dwell in caves outfitted up-to-date. (The rent is $15 yearly).

That a Philadelphia man's will leaves $100 to the person who will raise the German flag over Alsace-Loraine.

That Floyd Gibbons sleeps in his underwear. Not the suit he wears in the day. He changes before retiring.

That Dorothy Lee, of the movies, etc., is really Dorothy Millsap. (Her hometown crowd, however, calls her Dot for short.)

That a baby became an aunt a half hour after it was born. Mrs. Jessie Waller and Mrs. Cecil Palmer, mother and daughter, respectively, of Pana, Ill., gave birth to daughters the same hour.

Mt. Ida, Ark., is feminine in fact as well as name. All officials from the mayor down are femmes.

That George Washington was also the father of marathon dancing. A book reveals that Georgie once danced for five hours without stepping on the train of Gen. Greene's frau.

That the main street in Boston, Mass., is not used for traffic.

That Harpo Marx, of the Four Marxmen, who never speaks while on the stage, is the most talkative of the four.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Earl Carroll, the only Pittsburgh boy recorded in history as being able to rise from usher to producer in the theater, is counting on a number of European players, as well as novelties from the land across, to give vivacity and eclat to the coming edition of his well known "Vanities." Prominent among them will be Will Fyffe, Scotch character comedian, who made one appearance here—in the Davis in the good old days when vaudeville was a distinct type of entertainment instead of a motion picture appendage. Another from abroad will be a French artist, Andre Randall, said to have been associated with La Mistinguette in operettas and comedy.

Jimmy Carr, whose orchestra used to entertain Pittsburgh nightlifers in the Showboat cabaret on the Allegheny, still sticks close to the water. Jimmy, sometimes called "Doctor of Melody," now has his horn-tooters and sax-moaners on the banks of the Hudson. Across the river from the teeming city of New York, Mr. Carr is waving the baton in the Riviera, ever and anon dashing to a notebook to scribe a line or two for a volume he hopes will be published under the title, "Health and Music." Such literary leanings may be surprising to some of his Pittsburgh friends.

The fiftieth anniversary of Weber and Fields as a theatrical team will be celebrated next month with a golden jubilee dinner tendered by friends in New York . . . Edward G. Robinson, who recently completed "Tiger Shark," and is now working in "Silver Dollar," has signed a new contract with Warner Brothers. . . . Lewis Stone continues as one of the busiest actors in the movies, his recent work including parts in "Unashamed," "Red Headed Woman," and "New Morals for Old," with "Father and Sons." Jackie Cooper's next starring picture, as his current job, . . . Jean Harlow carries the small image of an elephant in her purse for good luck . . . Lillian Gish is on the Atlantic bound for England . . . Karen Morley received a fan letter written on ticker tape hundreds of feet in length . . . An unproduced play by the late J. Hartley Manners will emerge in November as a comedy with music, called "The Gay Divorcee," with Fred Astaire heading the cast . . . Joan Crawford spends many of her outdoor moments riding a bicycle . . . "The Master Melody," play planned for fall production by Arthur Hopkins, will have only one woman in it . . . Robert Montgomery's first week on the stage netted him $35—seven "bits" at $5 per bit . . . Herman Shumlin, who hit the big money with the production of "Grand Hotel," will produce a comedy by Samuel and Bella Spewack in which the scene of action is a Moscow Hotel.

Troubles Hit Rogers Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 9. Rumors were rampant in Hollywood Saturday that story trouble will cause the further postponement and maybe the abandonment of "Jubilo" as a Will Rogers vehicle at Fox.

In some official circles, it was said the picture would start as scheduled, but others put the date 10 days from now.

Will Rogers

This writer has strong grounds to believe, however, that the delay will be much longer if the picture is produced at all. "Jubilo" has been giving trouble since Fox started to convert it into a talkie script. As the picture was one of Rogers' best silent films, the studio has kept on trying to whip it into shape.

If these efforts fail, as it now appears they will, the cowboy-comedian will have nothing scheduled until "State Fair," that special with a September starting date.

BROTHERS MEET

Repartee flashes when the Brothers Barrymore meet on the "Rasputin" set.

The other day, Lionel wandered in after an afternoon of loafing in his studio dressing room.

John was fagged out. He had been working for hours in a heavy uniform and high dress boots.

Lionel sniffed.

"Just look at him," he snapped, "Those boots are the only things that are holding him up."

Some bright promoters have taken over the old Selig studio on Mission road and are offering the public a complete show of how talkies are made. For a small admission price, the visitor can see a company rehearse, play a scene and can follow the film into the cutting room and laboratory. Considering the thousands of people who are clamoring without avail at the other studio gates, the scheme should be a highly successful one.

Anita Page had a birthday last Thursday. Dorothy Jordan's is today and Norma Shearer's the 10th . . . Tallulah Bankhead's special brand of cigarets cost her 5 cents apiece. . . . Writing from the Northland, W. S. Van Dyke reports the "Eskimo" Company has suffered greatly from seasickness. The women in the party were unable to leave their bunks for four days. Even the cook was sick. But few cared about that. So far, Van Dyke has not been able to find a native Eskimo to play the lead in the film.

ANN HARDING IN PLAY

It may be October before Maurice Chevalier returns to Hollywood...After all, Ann Harding will play opposite Leslie Howard in "Animal Kingdom." Which must mean they will build up the woman's part in the play...The songs for the new Constance Bennett picture will be written by Sam Coslow.

If Harry Langdon can finish with the Al Jolson company by the eighteenth, he will go to Chicago to join the "Of Thee I Sing" troupe. The comedian figures to get a possible 20 weeks out of the engagement. After that, he returns to Hollywood to make those short subjects.

The deal hangs, of course, on United Artists.

Don Bestor Is Booked For Kennywood

Don Bestor will bring his orchestra to the Kennywood Park pavilion on Friday night, August 19, American Legion Day, for that evening only. The park engagement will be Bestor's final appearance before going into the Hotel New Yorker.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Endless Phrase

"ALL RIGHT. Let him go."

In the entrance to the kitchen, Frank heard the words as they fell carelessly from the lips of the restaurant owner. His eyes closed. He shivered.

Surely it wasn't his fault that the dishes had fallen from his tray. True, his hands weren't as steady as they might have been—but they had given him a greasy tray.

Frank swallowed hard.

"Can't I have another chance? I need this job so much. It isn't my fault that—"

"Collect your pay and beat it," he muttered vacantly. "The boss says to let you go."

Nothing more to be said now. His first job in six months was a thing of the past. Frank removed the apron that had been clean only eight days before, collected the dollar that was due him and walked dejectedly from the beanery.

His feet carried him three blocks to the nearest subway entrance. In addition to the dollar, there was a lonesome 5-cent piece in his pocket. He dropped the coin in a turnstile and boarded the first train that came along.

In a short time, he was sitting on that same familiar bench in Battery Park; the same spot on which he had sat for endless hours in days gone by. He stared out at the water through dull eyes.

"I heard it again," he muttered to himself. "That same phrase. 'All right, let him go.' I heard it again. . . ."

His father had wanted him to be a farmer. Surely he would follow in the footsteps of three generations. But that was not for Frank. He wanted the roar of the big city and the excitement that went with it. He wanted the softer surroundings of a large office. And even though it had been 40 years since he left the farm, he remembered only too well his father's last, bitter words:

"All right, let him go. And much good may it do him. Let him go." . . .

The old man had been right. It hadn't done him much good. At the age of 20, he joined the Stoutheart Steel Company as a junior clerk. And for year after year he remained in the same office. He reached the peak of his career many years later when he was made the bookkeeper in his particular office at a salary of $35 a week.

He had married at an early age. Twenty-two. And from the day of the ceremony life was just one battle after another. The office was the only refuge he knew from the biting tongue and the scornful contempt of the woman he had married. For fully 15 years, this woman derided his every effort, belittled his every hope and spent every one of the few dollars he earned. Eventually, she ran away with the lodger in their home.

Frank didn't go to pieces. What for? He had nothing before. He had nothing now. The scales balanced. The office was his relief. He found consolation in work, even though the work was cut and dried. So on and on rolled the years. On and on and on.

Came the crash, which has replaced that other hackneyed phrase, 'came the dawn.' And with the crash came cuts and the laying off of labor in the Stoutheart Steel Company.

Frank wasn't an eavesdropper. Never was and never wanted to be. But how could he help overhearing the discussion?

"How about old Frank Smith?" the chief accountant queried. 'He's been with us almost 40 years, and he's getting pretty slow. Shame to do it. Sure it is. But we must cut. How about it?"

"All right," he said. "Let him go" . . .

For the last six months, he had slept in flop houses. He had panhandled and stood for long, weary hours in breadlines. Every once in so often, a small job that ended in failure. Only an inherent religious fear kept him from suicide.

And what would you have me give you now? A happy ending? Should we have Frank recover, find a job and settle down to a happy, old age? Well, I'm sorry—but I can't do it. This happens to be a slice of life. And for every handshake it extends, life makes things even by giving someone else a kick in the pants. Frank died—and in his case, death was welcome. For the man had been patiently awaiting the last call.

So it was that, just as the flowers were springing into loveliness, Frank took the exit cue and passed on. Just another unknown, unclaimed bum who was marked for burial by the city in that curious handmaiden of Fate—Potter's Field.

They were preparing to lower the rough box. Two hefty gravediggers lifted the box over the 6-foot hole. And as they swung it center of the opening, one called to the other:

"All right, Joe. Let him go."

ROVER RECOVERY HINGES ON VAUGHAN

THE CHANCE THAT the Pirates will succeed in slapping on the brakes in time to save themselves from being knocked out of first place, or that, in event of being ousted before their slump ends, they will be able to fight their way back to the top later, hinges largely on the question as to whether Shortstop Floyd Vaughan can pull himself together or is going to make a complete job of his threatened cracking. Various explanations of the Buccaneer slide have been offered, but there is no doubt that in recent games the main trouble has been the bogging down of the 20-year-old shortfielder.

Floyd Vaughan

It's the old story of a rookie regular's being affected by a pennant strain. The average kid, playing his first year in the big show, can go just so far at a steady gait in a hot race. Eventually the tension gets him and causes him to wobble in critical situations. He is nervous, over-anxious, thinking too much of what is at stake and of the responsibility that is on him. The mental strain upsets his play. He starts to throw the ball before he gets it.

SOME YOUTHFUL PLAYERS are able to throw it off and settle down quickly. Others acquire only by long experience the balance, poise and steadiness that enable them to keep th pennant off their minds and play every game just as if it were an ordinary one in April or May.

To which of these classes Vaughan belongs is now the big question. Manager Gibson cannot afford to wait much longer for the answer. If there is not an early improvement in the youngster in the matter of steadiness, it will be necessary to give him a rest and settle down the infield by sending Tommy Thevenow to short at the cost of a loss of speed and hitting power.

NOT ONLY MAY Jimmy Foxx this year beat or tie Babe Ruth's all-time record of 60 home runs, but he is likely to equal the Bambino in another respect at the same time by leading all other American League batters in the matter of average.

In all the years that Ruth has been a home-run ace, he has won the league batting championship only once. He topped the heap in 1924 with .378. He made a similar average in 1921 and rose to .393 in 1923, but Harry Heilman beat him out both times. Foxx promises to lead the league in the averages in the same year in which he may give the majors a new homer record.

FINIS MAY BE written to the era of spitball pitching in the major leagues sooner than was expected. Even the present season may see the last of the damp fling unless Burleigh Grimes gets a new grip on himself for another year and manages to recover in part the form that has been sadly missing during the greater part of the 1932 campaign. The three other survivors are clearly near the end of the road. Clarence Mitchell, the only left-hander in the small group, has been filling the role of coach and scout for six weeks and it's a question if he will be restored to the roster later as an active pitcher. Jack Quinn, admitting he's 48, has not been able to get anything like the old results though appearing only in relief parts, and Urban Faber confesses that he's about done. One more season, at the outside, likely will make moist-ball hurling in the big show a thing of the past.

THE THEORY WAs once held that throwing spitballs was hard on a pitcher's arm, but Faber pronounces that a misconception, and the fact that he has been pitching from major league mounds for 19 years would appear to bear him out.

Urban Faber

"I recall that when I broke in with a spitter," Faber remarks, "the manager looked me over and told me that I ought to add something else to my equipment, for the spitball would ruin my arm in a few years. That was the general belief years ago, but I think that the spitter really kept me in baseball.

"IT IS THE easiest kind of delivery to throw, and I think it was because I always used that as my chief pitch that I never had any trouble with my arm, that is trouble serious enough to put me out for any length of time.

"To be effective, the spitter must be kept low. The ball slips off the fingers easily and there is no tax on the arm as there is in throwing a curve. But the spitter is going to pass out soon. There are only a few of us left and we can't last much longer.

SOME ATHLETIC FIGURES continue to stand out, even though their time is long past and their records have been beaten. Such a figure is Ralph Rose, famous shot-putting champion of the bygone, and America's Olympic winner in 1904 and 1908. Olympic games come and go, and marks for the shot put are bettered from time to time, but though several men have beaten his best record, Rose remains as the great hero of that event in field competition. He was the first man ever to put the 16-pound ball beyond 50 feet, and for 20 years no other man was able to send it that far. His best marks have long since been beaten, and Leo Sexton has put the Olympic figures as high as 53 feet 6 3-16 inches, yet they still talk of Rose, 6 feet 7 inches, and well over 200 pounds, as the great weight man of history.

LOS ANGELES TRIED for four years to get the Olympic Games of 1932, now swinging into their closing days. The workers began their campaign in 1920 and pulled every available wire until the meet was finally awarded to them in 1924, eight years before the time for its staging.

The agents of the California city, showing plenty of financial backing, promised to present the Olympic Games as they had never been presented before, providing them with a Hollywoodian splendor undreamed of by foreign nations. And as the meet nears its end, the verdict of all the competing countries is that they have made good on it.

KAYE DON, British holder of the world speedboat record of 119.81 miles an hour, will sail tomorrow with his boat, Miss England III, for the United States and the Harmsworth Trophy races at Detroit, September 1 to 5.

It's one thing to crack a record in a speed test, but it's quite another thing to finish first in competition, so even though Miss England III has made faster time than any American boat it does not necessarily follow that this country will not have a chance to retain the trophy when the real races are held. But, win or lose, its to be hoped the contests will not be marred by any of the trick stuff that Gar Wood tried to pull on the British visitors a year ago.

Harry Payne Whitney

GUSTO, FAIRENO AND the late Phar Lap were not the only prominent horses of 1932 to be underestimated as to racing possibilities in their early days. Even the great Equipoise was viewed as equally unpromising. Such a rare turfman and expert judge of horseflesh as the late Harry Payne Whitney, the original owner, could see no future for Equipoise as a yearling colt in 1929, pronouncing him only ordinary and ordering Trainer Jimmy Rowe to separate him from the good horses at Brookdale Farm and send him to Benning with a dozen other culls. Even in 1930, Owner Whitney showed little interest in the horse and never visited a course to see him race. That was the original estimate on a mighty thoroughbred which has come on to run the fastest mile ever made around a turn, 1:34 2-5, and to pile up winnings approximating a quarter of a million dollars.

U. S. SWIMMERS SET RECORDS, TAKE LEAD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—A calm settled down on the Olympic swimming stadium today as aquatic artists of the world returned to the routine of record breaking after the small riot which disturbed yesterday's events.

Three Brazilian stars were barred from further competition and that country's water polo team was disqualified as a result of their attack on Bela Komjadi, of Hungary, referee.

The wild scramble of flying fists and kicking feet came as a climax to the third day of the meet, which saw one world record bettered for the fifth time and two new Olympic marks set up, one of these for the fifth time.

HELENE SETS RECORD

Helene Madison, Seattle's 20-year-old breaker of free style records, proved she is still the greatest 100-meter sprinter of the world by winning the final in 1 minute 6.8 seconds, defeating Willimijntje Den Ouden, young Dutch girl, by two meters.

Miss Den Ouden had set the Olympic record at 1:07.6 only the day before. The recognized world record of 1:09.8 established by Albina Osipowich, United States, in 1929, was eclipsed by three full seconds. Josephine McKim, formerly of Homestead, Pa., and now of Los Angeles, finished fourth.

The United States as a result, took the leadership in women's team scores with 17 points, against five for Holland and one for South Africa.

There is a strong chance that this lead will be cut down today with the finals of the women's 200-meter breast stroke, for Clare Dennis, 19-year-old Australian girl, set a new Olympic record in the semi-finals with Margaret Hoffman, of Kingston, Pa., trailing.

All three of America's entries, Miss Hoffman, Anne Govednik and Jane Cadwell, qualified for today's race, along with little Hideka Meehata, Japan, who also bettered the old Olympic record.

OFFICIAL ATTACKED

The rioting followed the first water polo game yesterday, when Brazil lost a rough contest to Germany, 7 to 3. Members of the Brazilian team, feeling that Komjadi had discriminated against them, swam to the judge's stand, surrounded and struck him.

Many partisan fans swarmed from the stands to participate in the fistic argument, but the only injuries appeared to be badly ruffled feelings and disarrayed clothes.

Officers of the International Swimming Federation met immediately after the second water polo game, which Hungary won from Japan, 18 to 0, and wrote the Brazilian water polo team out of the championship and three members out of any further participation in swimming events.

The United States and Hungary are tied for first in the water polo with two victories each, with Germany second and Japan last.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: COMPETITIVE KISSING—The Olympic era was the Golden Age of ancient Grecian sport. The athletic contests included competition in music, poetry, dramatic recitations, masculine beauty contests, drinking, staying awake, etc. But the strangest of all athletic competitions was the Diocleia, originated by the natives of Megara, Greece. It was a competition in kissing and he who gave the sweetest kiss obtained the prize of a garland of flowers. (Authority: Theocritus, Idyll. XII.)

TOMORROW: THE MENTAL MARVEL.

DOYLE TO TELL OF PIRATES

What's wrong with the Pirates? Everybody's asking that question these days.

Tomorrow night, on the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Charles J. Doyle, baseball expert of the Sun-Telegraph, will analyze the situation and discuss the local club's chances of staging a comeback in the pennant race. The Pirates return home from their eastern trip the following day to battle Charley Grimm's Chicago Cubs, runners-up, at Forbes Field.

Also on the program will be Charles W. Ward, president of the Pittsburgh Casting Club, who will tell about the national fly-casting tournament to be held in Highland and Schenley parks week after next.

Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will be master of ceremonies, and Julius Levin, also of the sports staff, and Herb McGee and Miss Marian Salmon, of WCAE, also will participate in the program, which goes on the air at 6:50 o'clock for a run of 25 minutes.

Knockouts Mark Amateur Battles

Two technical and one clean cut knockout were features of the amateur boxing show staged by the Twenty-Seventh Ward Republican Club at its outdoor arena on the North Side last night.

Frankie Kladdick, of the Cyclone A. C.; Joey Severino and Al Quaill were the knockout victors. The summary:

147-pound class—Al Quaill, Y. M. H. A., won by technical knockout over Zick Walker, Buff A. C., third round.

CLIMATE BOON TO OLYMPICS

By LAWSON ROBERTSON,
Head Coach American Olympic Team.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 9.—All the glorification of the California climate was found to be justified during the track and field duels that have been part of the tenth Olympic games.

Never have we had anything even remotely approaching an orgy of record-smashing that was accomplished by the athletes who have just completed playing their roles in the greatest of dramas. And the main reason is climatic perfection.

The first day or two, when the times turned in by men in heats wherein none was really under pressure, and none going to the limit of his speed, there was considerable skepticism relative to the clocking. But this was found to be as accurate as humans can accomplish.

The track then came under suspicion, but this was remeasured and found to be absolutely right.

EXPLANATION SOUGHT

What, then, was the explanation?

The United States of America and the world at large contributed to the Olympics squads of runners and small armies of field men who were as great, perhaps greater as a group, than the world ever has seen in competitive action. These men had the ability to go out and either come close to existing marks or break some of them. They broke just about all that were on the books — something that would have been impossible in weather conditions less flawless than here.

For a long period prior to the opening of the games there was perfect weather, no rain. This created a track as fast as forked lightning. Throughout the eight days that the track and field games were staged, the conditions continued ideal. Thus the surface of the track and the turf within the field had not an iota of sogginess in it, and every man, either runner or thrower or jumper, was benefited by unequaled footing.

The sun shone down during these eight days, hot and sometimes searing. But there was not a drop of moisture in the air and, therefore, none of the humidity that saps vitality in many other cities existed here.

SUN GREAT TONIC

The sun was like a violet ray tonic for the boys and even it browned them to the hue of Indians. It gave them extra energy instead of taking it from them, as happens when moisture is in the air coupled with the sun.

It is my positive conviction that most all of the Olympic track records made here will endure through decades—or until athletes come again to California. None can hope that ever again will there be found such a combination of circumstances in any city of the world that will make wholesale record-shattering possible. We may, in some future year, have a group of athletes equal in greatness to these who competed here, but their onslaughts at the record will be futile without invigorating air tonic, sunshine and a fast track.

N. Castle Lad Pedals Way To Olympics

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—Jack Cole, 17, won the high jump and the mile run on the New Castle (Pa.) High School team, and he wished to see the Olympic Games. But it was a long jump here from New Castle.

He oiled up his bicycle and rode here in 23 days, just in time to miss the track and field athletics. But he will stay, he said, for other events before pedaling on to San Francisco to visit relatives.

STARS IN MARATHON

Eddie Antic, John J. Quinn and Roxy DeMarco are among the entrants in the marathon race to be held in connection with the firemen's benefit swimming meet at West View Park next Saturday afternoon. Three A. A. U. swimming championships are on the program, the 440-yard senior free style and breast stroke for men and the women's 440-yard junior free style event.

OLYMPIC RING DUELS OPEN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Referees will be inside the ring and render their decisions, along with those of two judges, for the first time in Olympic boxing competition, when the fistic battles of the international games start today.

This was decided yesterday by the International Boxing Federation, which also specified that a decision must be reached by the three officials, no draws being permitted; that the contestants must wear shirts, have only one handler in their corner and weigh in at 9 a. m., with a two-hour period of grace to make the class limit if they fail the first time.

One setback will eliminate a contestant. The bouts will be scored on a point basis, with a maximum of 20 points per round.

Sixteen nations have entries in the Olympic fisticuffs with the United States, Italy, Argentina, Germany and Great Britain sending especially strong teams into the fray.

Eddie Flynn, among the welterweights, and Fred Feary, slugging heavyweight, are among the American favorites.

Schenley Links Pay Tribute to Burke

The flag at the Schenley golf course was ordered at half staff today by Edward G. Lang, Director of Public Works, as a tribute to the late James Francis Burke, who played there in the early days of the layout, along with Senator Philander C. Knox, Henry Clay Frick and other notables.

BUCS RESUME SERIES WITH BOSTON CLUB

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The Pirates will make another big attempt to snap their long losing streak when they take on the Braves this afternoon in a single game. The Pittsburghers are due to close their long and gruelling invasion tomorrow, but they will have to compete with Bill McKechnie's hustlers in a dual bill.

Manager Gibson has several pitchers ready for slab duty, but he is likely to call upon either Remy Kremer or Bill Harris in the fight today. Skipper Bill may encounter with Bobby Brown, the stellar righthander, or Tom Zachary, a veteran lefthander, who generally gives the Buccos a lot of trouble.

STILL ON TOP

Losers in their last nine battles, the Pittsburgh stars still owned a first-place advantage of one and one-half games over the Chicago Cubs, who, like the Pirates, were idle yesterday. The ambitious Phillies sustained an awful flag jolt while their rivals rested. The Men of Shotton lost both ends of a doubleheader with the Cardinals and as a result their stock as probable flag-winner took a big tumble.

The heavy loss suffered by the Quakers dropped them into fifth place, the Braves moving back to the third notch of the order, while the Dodgers moved into the first division. The Braves are but four games below the Pirates as they resume hostilities with the league leaders.

George Gibson's club realizes it's back is to the wall and the remainder of the series here is likely to be fraught with fireworks. The absence from the Boston lineup of Outfielder Red Worthington may help the Buccos. Worthington broke one of his legs in sliding into third base in the second game of Sunday.

HOME THURSDAY

The Pirates are scheduled to make a hurried departure from Boston after the second game of tomorrow. They are due to reach Pittsburgh Thursday in time to take on Charley Grimm's rejuvenated Cubs in a single contest. Friday is an open date on the Pittsburgh playing card, the Rovers to take on the Reds Saturday at Forbes Field.

The Buccos yesterday journeyed to Portland, Me., where they scored a 10 to 0 victory over a team of that city.

Leon Chagnon, on the mound for the Pirates, turned in a two-hit performance while his mates were collecting 18 safe bingles. Thevenow led the Bucco attack with three hits, including a double. Erv Brame, in center field for the Pirates, drove out a home run. The score:

COLLEGIAN SIGNED

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—George O'Rourke, scout for Detroit, of the American League, said today Carl Lundberg, former Oregon State College hurling ace, had signed a contract to play for Detroit.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

CLEVELAND, Aug. 9.—Well, folks, you should see Cleveland's new municipal stadium, where we're playing our ball games now. I bet you could pour all of Lake Erie into it without spilling over the brim. Big? Say, it would be almost big enough to hold all the folks that are tired of listening to Borah.

Nick Altrock

If you have to have the vital statistics, it'll seat more than 80,000. The city built the thing and they can use it for anything from ball games to bull fights.

Personally, I would rent it out as a cure for insomnia. Instead of letting people count sheep to get to sleep, I'd charge admission to the Cleveland Stadium and let 'em start counting the seats.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The oarsmen of the world, their long training grinds behind them, were primed today for the opening of the "Battle of Alamitos Bay," as the initial trials to determine the seven Olympic games rowing championships got under way.

Interest centers around the eight-oared competition, in which the United States will seek its fourth successivev title. Navy won for this country in 1920, Yale four years later, and California in 1928. The present California squad is rated as one of the strongest ever assembled. This competition opens Wednesday.

As the sun begins to dip into the West this evening four-oared shells with coxswains will dart away from the starting line to officially begin the quadrennial competition.

ITALIANS FAVORITES

Germany, Brazil, Italy and New Zealand's entries will compete in the first heat, followed by the United States, Japan and Poland. The powerful Italian crew is defending the Olympic title in this four-oared event and is a strong favorite to repeat. Three of the oarsmen and the coxswain were in the 1928 shell. Poland has a strong crew, while the United States and Germany also figure to be in the running. Japan is believed to have only an outside chance.

Other events listed for today include pairs without coxswain and single sculls. Two heats of the single sculls, winding up the first day's program, are expected to furnish one of the most spectacular battles of the entire competition. The first heat in the afternoon will bring together Bobby Pearce, defending champion and favorite to claim his second title; Herbert Buhtz, German star who won the last diamond sculls race at Henley-on-the-Thames, and William Miller, of Philadelphia, American champion.

The second heat will pit Richard Southwood, of Great Britain, against Joe Wright, Canadian champion, and the giant sculler from Uruguay, Guillermo Douglas.

St. Peter's Plans Benefit Sport Events

Members of the athletic association of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, North Side, held an important session last night in the furtherance of the athletic events planned for benefit of the needy of the big district.

Arrangements are progressing for the staging of seven amateur bouts at the North Side Arena grounds on next Tuesday night. The proceeds will go to the general fund for the needy.

Pro Qualifiers and Freak Shot

Opening of Olympic games boxing competition, Los Angeles.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and Charley Baxter, of McKees Rocks, will box for the lightweight championship of Western Pennsylvania in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night, as a result of Gizzy's victory over Chico Cisneros, of Cleveland, in the same ring last night.

It was Gizzy's first win in his last three starts here, and he was none too impressive as he wrestled and slapped and cuffed his junior-lightweight opponent into submission. He reopened an old cut on Cisneros' left eye at the very start of the first round and pushed and wrestled him to the floor and into the ropes a half-dozen or more times and in other ways made the thing a typical sloppy mess, to the end that the fans booed his work and pulled for Cisneros to come on and win, which Chico almost did when he connected solidly with two hard rights to the jaw that slowed down Gizzy to a walk and had him in real trouble in the eighth round.

Cisneros outhit Gizzy in the second and third rounds, as well as the eighth, but could not cope with the wild and woolly tugging and ground and lofty throwing of the Battler over the route, especially after conceding three pounds in weight at scaling-in time at 3 p. m.

RUSH ACT FOR FANS

The match with Baxter was signed before last night's bout and was announced from the ring immediately afterward, with Baxter being introduced to the fans. It has been a stalled-off "natural" for months, and now suddenly plops up in the form of a rush act that gives the customers Gizzy in his present form twice in consecutive weeks in the same arena. A less appropriate time hardly could have been selected, judging from Gizzy's poor exhibition of last night on top of his recent defeats by Tony Canzoneri and Wesley Ramey at the Meyers Bowl.

The eight-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, was a dud, with Tom Malco, Soho welterweight, handing Marty McHale, of McKeesport, a beating and almost stopping him in the closing rounds, following a half-dozen rounds of holding and hitting on the part of both. Most of the work was at close range and quite uninteresting.

GREEN STOPS ATTEL

Anson Green, Homestead Negro middleweight, won by a technical knockout over Henry Attel, of Girard, O., when the referee stopped the second bout in the second round to save Attel from a further beating after he had been floored for nine. I. T. Battles, Erie Negro light-heavyweight, bested Ray Jennings, of Homestead, in the six-round opener, but the judges kicked the decision around and the referee awarded it to Jennings, to the loudly-proclaimed disgust of the fans.

Between Rounds

Ted Yarosz, undefeated welterweight, of Monaca, left this morning with his manager, Ray Fourtz, for Detroit, where he boxes Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, in a 10-round bout for Scotty Monteith at the Fair Grounds Friday night. Ted also may appear at Greenlee Field Thursday night of next week.

Arthur DeKuh, giant Italian heavyweight, who meets Neal Harris, Chicago Negro, in the main bout at Greenlee Field Thursday night, plans to leave next week for Australia, now a haven for American heavyweights, the invasion being headed by Young Stribling.

U. S. SWIMMERS TAKE LEAD

161.38 points with Harold Smith second, totaling 158.54 points, and Richard Deneger, of Michigan University, third to the two Los Angeles stars with a 151.82 total to sweep the first three places for the United States.

Alfred Phillips, of Canada, was fourth, almost 20 points in the rear of the American trio, followed by Leo Essar, of Germany, and Kazuo Kobayashi, of Japan.

The first three diving places thrust the United States into the team point lead with 27, against 18 for Japan, 3 for Canada and 2 for Germany.

DAVIS CUP TEAM BACK

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(INS.)—The American Davis Cup team, which was defeated by France, and the British tennis team which will play at Forest Hills, arrived from abroad today. Ellsworth Vines, Frank Shields, Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn and Bernon P. Prentice, non-playing captain, composed the American team.

CATCHER RECALLED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Frank Pytlak, young catcher farmed out to Toledo early this year, was called back to the Cleveland Indians today because of an injury received by Catcher Luke Sewell in yesterday's game between the Tribe and the Washington Senators.

WEST CAPTURES GRID TILT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—A team of Western football players defeated an eleven from the East last night, 7 to 6, as a part of the demonstration program of the Olympic Games.

Players from Southern California, Stanford and California came from behind to score a touchdown and kick a goal in the fourth period after the representatives of Yale, Harvard and Princeton had scored earlier in the same period.

The game, designed to introduce American football to Olympic Games visitors unfamiliar with the sport, showed the strangers everything about football except how to score touchdowns until the contest was on its last legs.

The East was outgained, West rushing 265 yards from scrimmage to 150 for East, but the East had the better of the passing game, picking up 66 yards to 12 for the West. The East completed four of 12 passes attempted, while the West's best was one out of six. The lineup:

WEST—	Position	EAST—
Arpelbide, Southern California	Right end	Barres, Yale
Elmhorn, Stanford	Right tackle	Hall, Yale

Smaller Cotton Estimate Reminiscent of Big Drop In 1926-27

The short cotton crop now indicated for the current year turned the memory of some observers back a few years to the 1926-27 period, when the reversal of the situation was just about as abrupt as at present. The country raised the biggest cotton crop in its history in 1926, output totaling upward of 18,000,000 bales. The following year, 1927, witnessed a heavy contraction in the size of the crop only about 12,900,000 bales having been produced in that period. Data covering the outlook for cotton at present deals chiefly with the tremendous weevil infestation and the need for a period of warm, dry weather if damage by the pest is to be checked in the next several weeks.

The temper of the current speculation was perhaps more vividly held forth by the action of General Motors yesterday. That stock, wholly ignoring the July report on sales published at midday, the figures incidentally being the poorest for the month in its history, bolted ahead on an enormous volume of dealings to show net gains of around 3 points at the best level. The report showed sales to consumers in the United States by dealers last month were 42 per cent below those for June and 62 per cent under July last year. Sales by the corporation to dealers were 33 per cent smaller than in June and 61 per cent smaller than in July, 1931.

Wall street statisticians estimate that the decline in earnings of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company has been comparatively light as against the heavy loss in stations by the Associated Bell companies. The latter now have about 1,000,000 less stations than at the end of 1930. Flexibility of expense control is supposed to have aided American Telephone & Telegraph in limiting net income losses in the face of rather steep declines in gross revenues.

Canadian Pacific Railroad Company directors took no action on the common dividend due at this time. On February 8, 1932, directors declared a quarterly dividend of 31¼ cents a share on the common stock and declared after the meeting at that time that thereafter dividends on the common would be considered semi-annually. Following their action yesterday the directors stated that due to the decline in business of subsidiaries and to uncertainty over the outcome of the wheat crop they had decided to defer action on the common stock until the result of the full year's earnings were known. The regular preferred dividend was declared.

Foreign credits and collections have begun to improve, removing one important obstacle to an expansion of American exports, Federal Reserve Board and Commerce Department information indicate that the credit hazard is less serious. The situation was held to be clearing so that American business men might once again start sales expansion efforts in foreign markets. For the last two years, marked by a tremendous shrinkage in exports, collections have been so slow that there was little incentive for exporters to go after the foreign business.

The current upward movement in bond prices as measured by the Dow-Jones average of 40 corporation bonds, reached a new high level yesterday with an advance of 0.94, the largest gain in the current up-swing. This made the aggregate advance during the 31 days on this swing 7.62, consequently it achieves the distinction of being the third broadest advance uninterrupted by a decline of one point in the history of the average, being surpassed only by the persistent movement running to 17.01 points in the 370 days to September 14, 1922, and the 8.01 gain in 729 days to the record high established on January 13, 1928, at 99.48. The average now stands but 5.06 below the 1932 high that is 77.24, as against 82.30.

AUTO OUTLOOK BRIGHTENED

DETROIT, Aug. 9.—An upturn in the sale of merchandise this fall is predicted by J. W. Frazier, general sales manager of Chrysler Sales Corporation, who, for the past 18 months, had refused to be quoted concerning the business outlook. Mr. Frazier said:

"I don't know what it is, whether the better tone of the stock market, the upturn in commodity prices, the bumper crop situation, or all of them, but during the last few weeks there has been a marked increase in activity all over.

"Our dealers all over the United States reflect an optimism they have not shown in many months. I believe that by fall there will be a marked improvement in the sale of automobiles in every price class."

STOCK PRICE MOVEMENT IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The bull campaign in the stock market found the list less responsive today, and while prices were given a sharp boost occasionally, advances were not well maintained.

Trading continued in large volume, but substantially under yesterday's. A brisk advance in the utilities in the late morning failed to attract an impressive following, and the list generally balked at exceeding yesterday's highs. By early afternoon, a number of issues were a point or two under yesterday's close. A sell-off at the opening had been quickly checked.

Several commission houses had felt that a substantial technical reaction was overdue, as a natural sequence to such a violent upturn as that of the past month. Bear traders continued to play for a reaction, and met with a little more success, after their futile and costly efforts of the past fortnight. Some important financial interests were said to have felt that the market was going ahead too rapidly for its own good of late, and to have started to put in selling orders in the hope of keeping the market more orderly. Buying, however, surpassed expectations, and the effort was abandoned as these interests found themselves losing their long position.

A morning setback in wheat tended to take some of the edge off the bullish enthusiasm, this may have been in part due to indications that the plan proposed by Eugene Meyer to aid in financing the movement of commodities to fabricators was apparently directed toward cotton and some other lines, at the start at least, rather than wheat. Bar silver joined the move in commodities with the sharp advance of 1 cent an ounce to 28⅛ cents.

Some important quarters in Wall street turned definitely to the view that one of the next major steps in the plans of governmental and financial leaders for economic rehabilitation, envisaged better commercial relations with Russia. Such a step, it was felt, had important potentialities for manufacturers of machinery.

An announcement before the end of the week on the plan to set up a fund, perhaps as much as $100,000,000, to help manufacturers with raw material purchases, was predicted in some important banking quarters. Railroad executives also meet this week to consider the plan of borrowing from the Reconstruction Corporation to renovate equipment. A number of rail executives felt that the plan and definite limitations, in view of the great surplus of equipment with freight movement at current levels.

Says Scrap Credits Would Provide Jobs

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The granting of credits for $15,000,000 to scrap steel and iron companies would provide employment for 75,000 persons, Benjamin Schwartz, director general of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, said in messages sent to Charles A. Miller, president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

This sum, according to Schwartz, is required to enable dealers to maintain about 1,000,000 tons of reserve scrap in their yards and to purchase scrap now on the market.

Foster Wheeler Corporation had net loss of $646,028 in the first half year against net profit of $70,828 a year ago. Unfilled orders on June 30 totaled $3,299,000 compared with $4,247,860 at the end of June, 1931.

Coca Cola Company June quarter net profit was $3,805,317 after charges and federal taxes, against $3,996,881 in the June, 1931, quarter. For six months to June 30 net profit totals $6,123,537 after charges and taxes, compared with $6,438,-898 in the first half of 1931.

Alton Railroad reports for July net operating income of $7,297, against $194,597 in July, 1931. Deficit after charges was $135,061, compared with $93,149 a year ago. For seven months this year, deficit after charges amounted to $996,344, against $2,137,442 in the like 1931 period.

National Air Transport, Inc., in the June quarter earned 11c a share, comparing with net loss of $6.75 in the previous quarter, and earnings of 31c a share in June, 1931, quarter. For 6 months, earnings were equal to 10c per share, against 40c a share in first half 1931.

Banks Resume Lending, Very Helpful Sign

—By B. C. FORBES—

BANKS, LONG mainly negative in their actions, are beginning here and there to indicate that they are regaining mental calm, even courage.

The largest bank in America outside of New York City has just launched large-space advertisements proclaiming its readiness to lend.

B. C. Forbes

ONE CHICAGO reader, O. M. Smucker, writes:

"The Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company apparently is thinking along the same lines you are, that banks should advertise at this time. The tone of the advertisements is rather daring.

"The bank has found a very healthy reaction to its efforts to be frank and take the bull by the horns."

Here are extracts from the bank's advertisements:

"Adversity has its uses. Strong men and strong institutions come through hard times with the consciousness of greater strength, added pose, renewed courage and a firmer faith.

"The past three years have been a time to try the faith of men—in themselves, in business, even in the rewards of faith. But out of such periods emerge certain men and institutions, seasoned by adversity, still facing forward.

"Confident of the inherent strength of America and its never failing recuperative powers, this bank lends money to sound business in bad times and in good. It will not deviate from this practice."

A PITTSBURGH reader, Vincent Drayne, gives another illustration of the new spirit. He writes:

"When a banker today spends money to advertise that he will lend money it becomes news. James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company and vice president of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, is doing that.

"He has come out with a series of display advertisements indorsing trade acceptances, declaring that their use will greatly aid business recovery and urging that his customers and business men generally use them. He declares that greater use of acceptances will enable him to extend more credit to customers.

"Mr. Chaplin has done other rather courageous things. Last fall when banking institutions generally were keeping as quiet as possible his bank published advertisements stating that these were times when a bank should help its customers and assuring his customers that he intended to take care of them. As a result, his bank is one of the few that have shown steady, uninterrupted growth."

South Penn Oil Regains Profitable Basis Of Operations

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

SOUTH PENN OIL Company has turned the corner and has established itself firmly on a profit-making basis. This is indicated by the income account for the first half of 1932. During this period the company earned $447,851 after taxes, depreciation, depletion and other charges. This was equivalent to 37 cents a share on 1,200,000 shares of capital stock and compared with a net loss of $9,057 in the first half of 1931.

The company has been one of the dominant factors in a group of producers in Pennsylvania fields which has put production under close control. Output has been brought into line with market requirements and prices have been strengthened.

Pennsylvania oil fields were subject to over development during recent years. The market for Pennsylvania crude, due to its capacity for producing high quality lubricants, ran counter to that for other types of crude until three years ago. Since that time over-production resulted in drastic price recessions. It has only been in the present year that part of the lost ground in prices has been regained.

Inventory Losses Were Major Factor in 1931

IN THE FULL year of 1931 South Penn Oil lost $820,191 after all charges. This compared with a net profit of $1,378,073 or $1.15 a share in 1930 and with net profit of $5,139,296 or $4.28 a share in 1929.

Inventory losses amounting to $1,118,201 were a major factor in producing a loss for 1931. Before deducting adjustments for this item and other non-recurring charges, an operating profit of $330,429 was shown after deducting all other charges, including depreciation and depletion.

No Skimping Is Seen on Charges

IN THE FIRST HALF of the present year gross income increased while operating and general expenses declined. In addition there appears to have been no skimping on depreciation and depletion charges, since both these items were in excess of the amounts for the corresponding period of last year.

Blondie Flees From Home After Father Criticizes Larry Belmont

CHAPTER XIV.

As the car turned into Central Park Larry drove on for a short distance, then suddenly put on the brakes. The car pulled up at the curb.

"No, please," Blondie said, as she pulled away.

"Could you like me?"

"I could love you," Blondie admitted quietly.

"Have you been happy—with me?"

"Don't be a sil!"

"Do you want to see me often?"

"I don't want to let you go now," and Blondie held him off.

"I'd like to drive on and on and on, and never come back—just the two of us."

"On and on and on!" Blondie echoed dreamily. Then she said: "You . . . you don't mean it . . . I'm just new."

"I do mean it—you know I do!" insisted Larry.

"How . . . do I know?"

"Instinctively!"

"That's good . . . instinctively. I'm plastered—and you're straight as a dime!"

"I hate people who get plastered." As Larry said that Blondie pulled herself together quickly.

LARRY STARTS AUTO

"I'm not plastered."

"I didn't say you were and you're not!"

"Yes—I think I am just a teeny-weeny bit . . . because . . ."

"Because you kissed me and I like it."

"No . . . because you kissed me and I like it."

"I gotta go home," she said. "I'm sleepy."

"Cuddle up, then," and as Larry started the car, Blondie nestled down on his shoulder. She was fast asleep long before Larry pulled up in front of the McClune tenement.

"My leg's gone to sleep," Blondie said, looking up. "Hey, turn that thing off," she demanded, realizing where she was.

ENTER TENEMENT

Blondie got up quickly, and Larry helped her out of the car. They hurried up the steps and entered the lower hall of the tenement. As Blondie turned to tell Larry goodnight, he clasped her in his arms. She responded instantly and said:

"Sweet little girl," said Larry tenderly. "I'm mad about you, really."

"Hold me," whispered Blondie. "I've never been so happy." And Larry held her—he never knew how long. Finally Blondie looked up appealingly:

"Kiss me again," she said simply, and Larry kissed her. Reluctantly she pulled herself out of his embrace and started up the stairs. As she turned to wave goodnight, she stumbled.

"Shhhh! . . . Don't talk so loud!" said Blondie in a loud whisper. She was laughing loudly as they mounted the stairs, giving away completely to her happiness and the champagne.

"Blondie!" called a voice quietly but firmly. They both looked up to see Pa standing at the head of the stairs.

"That's my Pa—Hello, Pa!" Blondie called gaily as she took hold of Larry's arm and hurried him up the remaining steps. Pa sternly regarded them in silence as they approached.

FATHER OBJECTS

"So this is Pa," said Larry amiably. "She's been talking about her Pa all evening."

Swaying a bit, Blondie grabbed Pa's arm and said:

"Yes, I told 'em all what a sweet Pa I've got."

"Come, Blondie," said Pa affectionately attempting to put his arm around her as he glared at Larry.

"She's all right. Just a little champagne." As he started away, Larry, in his most respectful tone, said, "Good morning."

"Let's go in, Pa, and ask Larry to come in," insisted Blondie.

"No, I'd better go . . . it's late," said Larry, "I'll see you tomorrow — I mean today — later."

"No!" emphasized Pa.

From the door to the flat Blondie called:

"Ask Larry in, Pa!"

"Come on in!" called Blondie.

"Quiet, you little devil!" said Larry, laughingly. Then turning to Pa with a friendly smile he said seriously: "Don't be cross with her, Mr. . . . uh . . . McClune . . . Mr. McClune—that's right . . . you see I remember it. I didn't know she shouldn't be out."

Pa turned on him fiercely: "Should any decent girl be out . . . like this!" he said, clinching his fists.

"There speaks the fond and anxious parent," replied Larry, trying his best to make light of the situation. "Now, if you'll let me explain . . ."

"Blondie, come here!" Pa called gruffly. As Blondie approached a bit unsteadily, he demanded, "Where have you been?"

"With me, I'm afraid . . ."

"With you—who are you" said Pa, turning on him.

PA GETS ANGRY

"My name happens to be Larry Belmont . . . now there's nothing to be alarmed about . . . she's been in very good hands . . . uh . . . she's been well looked after . . ."

"Well, I'm sorry . . . it was my fault. But there's nothing to worry about, I assure you."

"I wouldn't be so sure with a man like you."

"Well, that's unkind . . . you can think what you like. Now you know, as a man of the world, if there had been anything I wouldn't be up here arguing about it—I'd have just parked her and left her . . . you know . . ." and Larry laughed understandingly at the father, "It's only because . . ."

"You're intoxicated . . ." Pa was glaring fiercely.

"And you're . . ." said Larry violently. Then shrugging his shoulders he said quietly, "Oh, well."

"Please, Pa!" said Blondie, suddenly realizing that this was going too far. "What's the matter with you?"

Blondie shook herself free, and suddenly caught Larry around the neck as he stood at the top of the stairs.

"I'm going to call you up," she said seriously, as she looked deep into his eyes.

"Do," said Larry affectionately, ". . . explain to all of them how good we've been." Then giving her a little intimate pat on the cheek, "God bless . . . good night." He turned suddenly and ran down the stairs.

Blondie watched him longingly as he went through the door and out of sight to the street. Then she turned and slowly walked past her father and into the flat. Her father followed her closely into the living room. As Blondie started for her own room, he said:

"Come here. I want to talk to you."

"Not now. I've heard enough. I'm going to bed."

"You're in the Follies?" Pa echoed incredulously. Then seeing the look of triumph on her face, "Is that where you've been?"

"Yes, back of the stage . . . the dressing room . . . a speakeasy . . . and that Lurline . . . Say, is that a palace she lives in . . . Oh, pa, listen . . ." and Blondie took off her hat and coat . . . "Look at that," as she held up the hat, ". . . and get this fur piece," proudly displaying the coat. She laid them carefully down on the box couch. "Let me tell you about Lurline—you wouldn't have believed it—"

FATHER BARS WAY

"Here, Pa, what are you doing," Blondie cried.

With a wild swing Pa contemptuously threw them across the room. They landed in a heap in the corner. Blondie dashed after them. Her father was trying desperately to keep some semblance of self-control.

"Please, Pa, don't start in on me, or I'll get sore . . . you've never seen me sore." Blondie was fighting hard to keep back the tears, as she again started for her room.

"I want to talk to you," said her father, barring the way.

"Just what I said."

"Did you?" Pa insisted.

"Pa!" Blondie's voice was pleading.

That man was drunk . . . and so are you . . . do you know what danger is?"

"With him!" Pa reiterated.

"He's a gentleman," Blondie said, trying to control herself.

"He's a drunken, no-good upstart . . . I know men and you're not going to see him again—never. Do you understand? Pa was raging now, his hands clinched defiantly.

BLONDIE RUNS AWAY

"I'm going away—I'm going to do what I like and I'm going in the Follies and I'm going to live as I want—and I'm going now!" Blondie made a dash for the door.

"No!" demanded her father, grabbing her arm

"Let me go . . ." she cried, pulling away, and ran into the hallway.

"Blondie!" Blondie did not hear her father call as she ran down the stairs, and into the street.

"Blondie!" Pa called again, as he hurried down after his fleeing daughter. Breathless and hatless, he ran out only to see Blondie running madly through the deserted street. Pa watched in pathetic silence as his daughter disappeared from view. For some time after Blondie had gone, Pa stood looking with tear dimmed eyes at the corner where she had last seen her. Then slowly he mounted the stairs, pausing at the top to catch his breath and mop the perspiration from his forehead. Then squaring his shoulders and lifting his head high, he strode into the flat.

As her father entered the flat Blondie was several blocks away, slowed down now to a walk and quite out of breath. She pulled on the hat, slipped into the coat and looked anxiously up and down the street. In the next block she sighted a taxi, and hailed the driver to the curb. As she got into the cab she said to the driver:

"Park avenue—I don't know the number but I'll show you the place."

Synopsis

Blondie McClune and Lottie Callahan, friends since childhood, work in the same store. After work one evening, Lottie says she has a date and asks Blondie to join her. Blondie disapproves. Two men wait for them outside the building. When one becomes too familiar with her, Blondie slaps his face and goes home alone, to the poor section of the city. Later the two girls argue about the date and it ends in a rough and tumble fight. Blondie's dress is torn and she decides to get a new one. Looking for some money she had saved, she discovers that somebody has taken it. She greets her ailing dad when he arrives home and learns that he has lost his job. Lottie leaves home in quest of a career. After a few months, under the name of Lurline Cavendish, she becomes the newest sensation of the Follies. She visits the McClunes, but is anxious to get away from the place she once called her home. Blondie is self-conscious when she meets Larry Belmont, a young broker. Lurline becomes angry with Blondie for accepting a theater invitation from Larry. Blondie, through Larry's influence, is given a part in the Follies. Larry quarrels with Lurline when she objects to Blondie accompaning them on party.

Now Go On

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Members of Expedition Return With Prisoners

Katie's signaling hand from the doorway effectually banished from our thoughts the little comedy that Ronald and Mary were playing for Marion's benefit, and which we had engineered. It could mean but one thing, we reasoned, and we rose and went to her at once.

"Dot Jeem he coom und say automobile cooming back slow ofer hill," she said, and scooted back to the kitchen again.

"I want to ask that no one of you leaves this room, no matter what you hear, until someone comes in and tells you it is all right for you to go away," I said. "We are having some important visitors on secret business. Bill and Hank, you may tell the rest about the conditions under which we have been living for the last few weeks. This is just another development. The best way you can help us is to keep on dancing."

VICTIM UNCONSCIOUS

"Count on us to our last layer of shoe sole," retorted Bob Trevellan, the irrepressible, and with gay young laughter following us, Lillian and I went swiftly to the kitchen door, just in time to witness the stopping of Harry Underwood's big car in front of the door.

Dicky jumped to the ground and rushed into the kitchen.

"We had to knock one of these fellows out," he explained in a low tone. "Don't think he's seriously injured, but he's unconscious. Where can we put him until we find out?"

"We'll have a place ready by the time you get him in here," she said. "Katie, run and get those things for an emergency hospital bed. Bring the first-aid kit, too."

"Sure ting!" Katie was off with the words, down the back hall to one of the big closets in which the farmhouse abounds. As she went Lillian and I started for the laundry, a big room where Katie prepares vegetables upon a big, long, zinc-covered table, I had divined her purpose, and we lost no time in stripping it of the few cans and boxes that it held. Then we wheeled it into the kitchen, leaving plenty of room all around it, and with Katie handing us the things she had brought, we had a fairly good hospital equipment ready by the time Harry Underwood and one of the secret service men, who had stood upon the running board upon the journey down, came through the door, bearing an unconscious figure, which, when they laid it down upon the couch, I saw was a Chinese, as was the bound man in the front seat whom Lee Chow and the other secret service man now lugged through the door and deposited in a corner as unconcernedly as if he had been a sack of potatoes.

The two men had shed their coats in the car, and as they bent over the unconscious man, I knew that, war veterans as they were, they needed no help from us. Indeed, even as I walked toward the corner where Lee Chow stood over the bound man, I heard a sound of returning consciousness from the man on the cot and Dicky's warning.

"Look out! He'll be a nasty customer even if he is tied!"

But I knew better than to meddle with a situation already so well taken care of and held out my hand to Lee Chow with a cordial greeting.

ASKS FORGIVENESS

"I am so glad to see you."

He smiled gravely.

"I cannot tell you all my joy at seeing you once again," he said in the perfect English that always seems a bit queer to me because of the long months when he masqueraded as a lower-class Chinese, a servant of Hugh Grantland.

"I trust you will forgive my apparent lack of courtesy," he went on, "but I must carefully watch this—thing here."

I turned and looked into the most malevolent black eyes I think I have ever seen. Set in a yellow face, drained of blood. I shivered, even though I saw that the man was thoroughly secured by stout ropes.

"Don't stand so near him, Mrs. Graham," an anxious voice said. "Come away!"

The hand laid upon my arm drawing me away from the vicinity of the bound man, the voice speaking my name, were well remembered. I turned and looked into the face of Hugh Grantland.

MORE IN SORROW THAN IN ANGER

New York's Athletic Commission has ruled that hereafter only qualified experts will be allowed to broadcast prize fights. And somehow it saddens us to think that we'll no longer have a chance to sit before the radio and hear things like this:

"Oh, boy! Oh, boy, what a fight! That last round was a pip, and here they come out for the fifth stanza. Slaughterhouse Dugan leads with a terrific right which connects with Sowinskie's chin. It rocks him, and for a minute it looks like he's going down. But he rallies gamely and rushes in, pummeling Dugan with short rights and lefts to the body. They're apart again, trading long lefts and rights to the head. Now they're in close trading short rights and lefts to the body. Say, this is some fight! Say, I wish you could all see this fight! Sowinskie smashes Dugan on the ear. Dugan smashes Sowinskie on the nose. Both men are breathing heavily, but are in there working all the time and it's anybody's fight. Sowinskie swings a terrific right which connects with Dugan's jaw— Just a minute folks— Sowinskie by a knockout! No; Dugan wins on a foul. No; the referee is stopping the fight. It is declared no contest. That's all for tonight, folks. Boy, what a fight!

James Francis Burke

In His Passing Pittsburgh Has Lost a Loyal Citizen and a Genial Gentleman

Pittsburgh has cause for sorrow in the passing of James Francis Burke.

He was a loyal Pittsburgher, who did not permit his long sojourns in Washington, nor his absorption in national affairs, to dull his interest in the city's welfare. Whenever there was anything that he could do to help Pittsburgh he was on hand with an offer of his valuable services.

Mr. Burke was a national figure. He counted among his personal friends nearly every President since Cleveland. The esteem in which he was held by President Hoover is indicated clearly enough by the fact that the President sent his personal physician, Dr. Joel T. Boone, to examine the Pittsburgher when it became evident that he was ill.

Throughout his life Mr. Burke was closely identified with partisan politics. He was an ardent Republican and stood high in the party councils, having served for a number of years as general counsel to the Republican National Committee. But he was not a politician in the unworthy meaning that the word has acquired; he did not stoop to trickery or dishonor, and his political career ends with his record clean.

Mr. Burke put love of country above partisan advantage. He was a true patriot. The deep emotion which marked his orations when he told of crises through which the Nation had passed, and pleaded for patriotism, was not the mere artful device of a skillful orator, but expressed his sincere feeling.

He was a genial gentleman, a man whose elevation to the seats of the mighty did not turn his head; he remained democratic, and was always ready to meet people, no matter how obscure or how slight their claims on his attention, in a friendly way.

A Questionable Deal

The Tranter Road Machine Transaction Gives the County Taxpayers Food for Thought.

Taxpayers of Allegheny County are furnished food for thought in the Tranter road machine transaction.

Notwithstanding that two competing bidders offered to supply machines at lower figures, the County Commissioners awarded the contract to the Tranter Manufacturing Company.

The president of the Tranter Manufacturing Company is Henry Tranter, a political ally of County Commissioners C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr, and one of the candidates, along with McGovern, on the Independent Republican ticket in the primary campaign last year.

The two machines that the County Commissioners agreed to buy from Tranter are old machines and are declared to be unfit for the purpose for which it was proposed to use them.

On the advice of an engineer County Controller Robert G. Woodside has disapproved the contract.

The machines in question have been stored for several years, one in a barn in Butler County, the other in a warehouse in Cambria County, and it is asserted neither was taken out for demonstration prior to the awarding of the contract for their purchase.

This makes it pertinent to inquire of F. J. Chester, director of the County Highway Department, why he recommended purchasing them in preference to the equipment of the lower bidders.

Commendable Caution

The City Council Does Well in Not Rushing to Exercise Its New Taxing Authority.

The City Council is pursuing the proper course in not rushing to exercise the new taxing authority conferred upon it by the Sterling act.

The act permits Council during the next three years to tax virtually anything that is not already subject to state taxation.

The purpose is to permit revenue to be raised through other sources than the real estate tax. Real estate carries an unfair tax burden, and should be relieved of part of it. The Sterling act provides a way of granting relief.

Of the various tentative suggestions that have been made for application of the law there is none more worthy of acceptance than Councilman P. J. McArdle's recommendation that it be applied, if possible, against persons with substantial incomes who have heretofore managed to evade taxation.

Plain Living

Simpler Diet, Enforced by Hard Times, Has Not Been a Bad Thing for Some.

"Plain living and high thinking" have been upheld by the philosophers as desirable things.

Plain living, it appears from an interview with Raymond J. Kief, president of the International Stewards' Association, who are holding their annual convention in Pittsburgh this week, has been enforced on many hotel and restaurant patrons by hard times. In consequence rich, fancy and expensive dishes have been driven from menu cards in favor of simple foods.

Digestions are no doubt the better for it.

It seems inevitable that we shall reap a harvest of ill-health from the undernourishment of the destitute. But those who have been compelled by curtailed incomes not to starve, but merely to live plainly, will benefit.

State Aid to Fairs

The Commonwealth Cannot Be Expected to Help Counties That Flout Its Laws

Secretary John A. McSparran, of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, has raised no new issue in announcing the Commonwealth's subsidy will be withheld from county fairs that permit concessionaires to operate gambling devices and present immoral shows.

The same question comes up year after year.

In some counties the fair authorities maintain they cannot escape a deficit, even with the state's subsidy, except by letting paddle-wheels, shell games and the like be played, and by letting the modern counterparts of "Little Egypt" perform.

The Commonwealth makes financial grants to county fairs to promote agriculture, not to provide entertainment, and it cannot be expected to aid counties that flout its laws.

The Hole Trouble

By Nelson Harding

Your Uncle Sam has wondered why
His hard-earned money seemed to fly
And why his bankrolls disappear,

The explanation of the leak
Has not been very far to seek.
He finds his pockets' emptiness

Good Sport Lovers

Love-sickness is an old-fashioned disease, which still may be found, here and there—but there is nothing chronic about it nowadays.

One reason those charming foreigners are so fascinating is because that little accent they have, somehow, always gives a woman the impression that they are talking "baby talk" to her.

Judging by all the advice girls receive on how to "choose" a husband, you'd fancy that the "choice" was as ample and varied as the dishes at a cafeteria instead of as limited as a table d'hote menu.

Oh, who should the spirit of the summer Lothario be proud? It is no feat to fool one woman after another—the feat is to go on fooling the same woman, forever.

Sometimes, a man actually enjoys making love to the right sort of woman and eating the things that are good for him; but they don't give him half the kick that they would if they were labeled "Dangerous" or "Verboten."

Your worst enemy may tell everybody that she suspects you are a lot older than you look or will admit; but it's your dear old chum who KNOWS that you are and whispers that she can prove it.

A "Good Sport" is one who knows how to win gracefully, and how to lose with a smile and no hard feeling—whether at bridge, golf, in a quarrel or in a summer love affair. A "Good Sport" is a thoroughbred!

Nothing so insults a girl's vanity as to discover that the man, who doesn't come around any more, has fallen for some colorless little thing, no prettier and no younger than SHE is.

No man's vanity need to be inflated by these easy summer conquests—there is always so much extra parking space in a girl's heart at this time of year.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—New York is becoming amazingly "small-town" conscious. It used to be, everybody transplanted here, began immediately to look upon any part of the country west of Jersey City as some bleak, extramural region where mossbacks with sprouting mouth-straws, exclaim: "By Heck!"

Today, there is inclination to boast of originating in Kansas City, Omaha, Denver or far lesser vilayets. Perhaps it is the civilizing influence of the radio and movie, but, whether it is, there is no longer that supercilious attitude toward the small towner.

Smart speciality shops once bore such proprietorial names as "Rene of Paris," or "James of London," but now a pert tea room in the fashionable East 50's heralds its owner as "Formerly of Waycross, Ga." A revenue raided speakeasy, known tautologically as "The L'Aiglon," in Harlem, reopens as "The Old Home Place."

What has been ballyhooed as the most sophisticated strip in the world—Broadway — has become immersed in country-town jakeyness. There is a Racket Store, a Busy Bee restaurant, a pool hall known as The Elite, and in front of two big hotels, chairs for guests are at the curb of evenings.

There is a taint, too, of Main Street's muddy shallows, even in the drug stores around Times Square. Soda fountains attract a city version of the rustic revellers who gather back yonder. New York, without knowing it perhaps, is taking up the backwoods stuff at which it once chuckled.

At a stag dinner, my table companion was a born New Yorker, professoring at a local college, and when I told a joke pilloring a native New Yorker, he observed testily: "I happen myself to be autochthonous." He wasn't going to put on the lug with me so I told him I was, too. He inquired if I were born in Manhattan or Brooklyn and I told him Plattsburg, Mo. And I did feel silly when I looked up that up-the-creek word next day.

Lillian Lorraine is living in retirement in an apartment on the west side. There is a feather of gray in her hair, but the beauty that once made her a "toast of the town" is astonishingly preserved. Her last public appearance was as a night club hostess. In her day, she was the Rialto's most irresponsible madcap, although she never missed a performance. Perhaps the best remembrance of her, for many, is when she floated over the audience in a swing of roses on the old New York Roof. It was one of those sunbonnety innocences that, like a purge of clean rain, emphasized the peachbloom of her cheeks and the starry-eyed candor she retains even after these 20 years.

I recall, too, a night watching Miss Lorraine in the Follies at the historic New Amsterdam. Never was I so emotionally entranced as at her entrance in a cathedral scene—a background of lancet windows and prisms of light as tender as colors of a pigeon's throat. Miss Lorraine, with tragic eyes upturned, and in sepulchral white, moved, to the footlights, her hands held piously in supplication. The music was hauntingly melancholy. Still in the anesthesia of her mood, I dropped in afterward at Joel's, across the street, to ingurgitate a flagon of light beer and ponder. After a time, a hoydenish creature breezed in, called the bartender by name and cried: "Ladle me out a setting of stingers. I feel like sowing a wild oat or so." It was Miss Lorraine, and I went straight home and tore up my letters to Santa Claus.

There was a powerful potion at Joel's, called the Blue Moon—Prussian blue in color and 40 cents the copy. Clyde von Maur, an artist—and where is he now?—and I went over from Hampton's magazine one payday, feeling flush, and downed two in quick succession. Two hours later, at the office we found the sheriff selling the safe and we were professionally "at liberty." In the middle of a depression, incidentally. But we only laughed, ha, ha, walked lockstep down several flights to John McGraw's billiard parlors, strummed at cues in the racks as though they were harps, and gave our hilarious imitation of the city slicker and the postmaster's daughter. Then on our way home we chinned every Broadway lamp-post. The Blue Moon was that sort.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

What ails this country? Fundamentally, just one thing. ONE-THIRD OF US BELIEVE THAT WE'RE DIFFERENT AND BETTER THAN THE OTHER TWO-THIRDS.

Out of that belief all our crookedness and cruelty and cussedness spring.

We don't mean to be crooked, cruel or cussed. We are honest and friendly with "our own kind," and generous with both cash and advice to "the other kind." But there's the rub! We believe that we are, distinctly, one kind of human being and that the under dog is an entirely different and much inferior kind of human being.

We believe that we're finer human material and more important to the world. We believe we love more keenly, suffer and rejoice more intensely, are more ambitious, desire beauty and order and decency more ardently, are more proud and reliable.

I have, for example, a charming friend who lives in New York. She is deeply interested in people and gives heavily to charity. On warm summer evenings she drives down to the lower East Side, through tunneled tenement streets littered with push carts, cluttered with people squatting on door steps, clotting in sweating groups in the steamy, darkening air.

It is not a happy or a pleasant scene. Everything is very poor, very dirty. My friend is greatly moved. She weeps for the poor little children who must sleep in those dreadful rooms. She looks with shuddering pity at the ragged, listless women sitting on the curbs, surveying the crowds with hopeless eyes. Then she gives a little shrug, and as we drive uptown to her pleasant, cool apartment, to her charming, prosperous family, she says:

SHE DOES NOT DREAM THAT THESE PEOPLE ARE LIKE HER IN EVERY HUMAN ESSENTIAL.

They do not live in filth because they like filth; or noise, or disorder. They live that way because they cannot help themselves. And all the while they are trying desperately to help themselves. They are struggling, as she would struggle if she were there, to escape from that ugliness; and they are feeling every emotion of resentment, despair and frantic desire which she would feel.

As a matter of fact, if she were there she might not make half as good a showing as they are making. For though my friend is very charming, she has few resources in herself. She is actually a stupid and helpless human being, who couldn't maintain her present status for a day if her husband didn't pay her bills.

And this humiliating fact applies to most of us who think we're the berries! If we were all stripped of our prestige, and possessions dumped, along with the rest of the human race, on a desert island to fend for ourselves, MOST OF THE MASSES WOULD MAKE MOST OF THE CLASSES LOOK LIKE THIRTY CENTS.

AND THE MASSES KNOW IT.

That ragged, listless mother sitting on the curbstone knows it—knows the skill that lies in her hands and the love and loyalty that lies in her heart. That bent, discouraged, filthy husband of hers knows it—knows that, when it comes to real work he's a better man than the chap in the limousine. That half-starved son of theirs, struggling frantically for the education which the rich boy gets gratis, knows that he and his kind have created most of the beauty and comfort which the rich boy enjoys.

Why is there a muttering at the heart of America today? That is why.

Save Monticello
A Plea to Americans

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

An appeal has been made to the American people to save Monticello, the home of Jefferson, dedicated as a national shrine several years ago. Nine years ago an organization was perfected to acquire this beautiful mansion for presentation to the nation because it was the home of the heart of the great philosopher of democracy. It was designed by Jefferson, one of the real American architects of his day; it was in this house that he planned his battles for a free society. It was here that he spent the years of his retirement on leaving the presidency, and for 20 years the great of all nations made sentimental journeys to the house on the hill-top. It is associated with Washington, Madison, Monroe, John Adams, Lafayette, Webster, Clay—all the great patriots of the time. It was here Jefferson died, and here he is buried.

Privately Owned Until 9 Years Ago

For generations this historic shrine, with its sacred grave, was private property. Americans could visit it on sufferance only. The public had no rights in the most historic shrine of patriotism aside from Mt. Vernon. It was a reflection on the nation that this was so.

Nine years ago, the Thomas Jefferson Foundation was organized, and it took over the mansion, the out-buildings, the 650 acres, and such relics as the one-horse wagon in which Jefferson rode to Philadelphia to write the Declaration of Independence.

The cost was $500,000; and in the intervening years, the foundation has paid $400,000 on the purchase price and spent $324,883 on repairs. More than $100,000 worth of relics and old furniture has been contributed.

Many thousands of people, from children of the schools to the great of this and other lands, have journeyed to this shrine annually.

There is not a more inspiring spot for Americans in all the land today.

Shrine Presented To the Nation

The shrine was presented to the nation and accepted for the nation by Secretary of State Kellogg—though the nation so inseparably associated with Jefferson's philosophy and services has not paid a penny. This is not to the credit of the nation.

Men of all parties have contributed to the purchase; leaders of both parties are on the board; and never once in nine years has any ceremony there been remotely partisan in its character. Monticello is preserved as the symbol of Americanism.

But when the depression came, the board decided to ask no further donations to the purchase until times are better. The depression has continued longer than expected—and now an organization, rendering a great service to the country, which has a property dedicated to the nation of the value of $800,000, is compelled to ask the American people to save Monticello.

Property Now Worth $800,000

Four hundred thousand dollars has been paid on the purchase price—and thousands of school children have contributed their dimes and quarters to this end; and thousands of people of ordinary means have given their dollars.

Just $324,883 has been spent for necessary improvements and repairs—to prevent the deterioration of a property that is sacred to patriotism.

And the property today is worth as much as $800,000.

But still outstanding on the purchase price is $127,000 for which provision must be speedily made or the whole achievement may be lost and the shrine revert to private ownership.

School Children Contributed

On several occasions when money was required for the purchase, school children in America rallied to the cause with all the enthusiasm of youthful patriotism. They made their sacrifices in pleasure because of what Jefferson had done for the country and mankind. They assumed that, of course, the American people would generously respond.

If in all America it should now turn out that the patriot whose principles Nicholas Murray Butler says are essential for the preservation of our free institutions means so little that even in these days it is impossible to secure as much as $127,000 we should not want to be the one to tell these children the shameful story.

Of course such a tragic collapse of all patriotic sentiment even in these days seems incredible. Of course, in this land of 125,000,000 people there are 25,000 Americans who would give a five dollar bill. Of course there are 12,700 Americans who would give a ten dollar bill.

But the only way to reach these Americans is by a popular appeal through the American press. To solicit contributions individually through agents or correspondence would entail a prohibitive expense. All the expenses of the Jefferson Foundation have been cut to the bone—because of the depression.

There should be no need for individual solicitation. The mere announcement of the fact that $127,000 is required to assume Monticello to the nation for ever should be enough.

Government Failed To Finance Shrine

I have scant patience with the fact that the American government has done absolutely nothing. It has appropriated vast sums of money for memorials less sacred, impressive, and meaningful than this. It accepted Jefferson's services—and not two men in all our history has served it so gorgeously. When, because of his long public services, poverty darkened his old age, it took his library for a song and laid the cornerstone of the Congressional Library.

Lincoln said the year after he was dead and his grave was shut off from the public by private ownership, that "the principles of Jefferson are the definitions and the axioms of a free society."

Speaking for myself alone, I think it would be a contemptible thing for the government of the nation of which Jefferson was a foremost founder to permit this enterprise to fail — because of $127,000.

But the government is not asked to help.

The help must come from the people, the children for whose educational privileges he fought; the press for whose freedom he waged such a tremendous battle; the churches of all sects and creeds whose rights he guaranteed.

Every one who feels this way should immediately send whatever they can from a dollar bill up, to the Thomas Jefferson Foundation, 70 Pine street, New York City; and for every ten dollar contribution an honorary guest card for life will be issued.

"Thomas Jefferson still lives," said the Dying Adams. Well, we shall soon see.

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELS

For That Past Ecstasy

He dwelt within my heart for many a year
Before I knew that he did not exist;
He brought the gates of heaven very near,
Gave fancies wrought of pearl and amethyst.
He made toil sweet and hardship but a jest,
With him life's rugged, climbing road was good;

So when at last the veil was swept aside,
And I beheld the empty shrine revealed,
Though then some fire that burned within me died
And from mirth's touch my lips and heart were sealed,
I could forgive, for that past ecstasy
Which he, who never was, had brought to me.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Correct the error in each phrase:

1. She don't skate very well.
2. That is the party that asked for you.
3. Divide it between the three of you.
4. Can I borrow a pencil?
5. The herd were frightened at my approach.

Do you know:

6. Who said,
"Be not merely good; be good for something?"
7. Near what city in Ireland stands Blarney Castle?
8. What part of a word is the prefix?
9. For what king of France was Cardinal Richelieu the Prime Minister?
10. What is a homonym?
11. What is the next line,
"Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean—roll!" Byron?
12. In what country is Lake Como?
13. What is pastoral poetry?
14. The name of what battle is often used to suggest utter failure?
15. With what words does Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" begin?

1. She doesn't skate very well. 2. That is the person that asked for you. 3. Divide it among the three of you. 4. May I borrow a pencil? 5. The herd was frightened at my approach. 6. Thoreau. 7. Cork. 8. A syllable occurring at the beginning of a word, and used to modify the idea expressed in the principal part of the word. 9. For King Louis XIII. 10. A word which sounds like another, but differs from it in meaning. 11. "Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain." 12. Italy. 13. Poetry which deals especially with nature. 14. Waterloo. 15. "Fourscore and seven years ago."
